Country Information Package

GHANA

Disclaimer

Country Information Packs (CIPs) are prepared by researching publicly accessible information currently available to the Refugee Documentation Centre within time constraints. CIPs contain a selection of representative links to sources under a number of categories for use as Country of Origin Information. Please note that CIPs are not, and do not purport to be, exhaustive with regard to conditions in the countries surveyed or conclusive as to the merit of any particular claim to refugee status or protection. The General Human Rights Reports category contains links to information which may be useful for a number of the other categories.

Ghana: The practice of 'Trokosi' in terms of women. How widespread is it? What are the factors that results in this practice? What age are women recruited for it? Is it linked to any particular religion or tribal groupings? Has it links with similar practices in other West African countries such as the Benin Republic? Are women forced to join this? Can women leave if they wish to? Are there laws against this practice? Do the police take actions against this practice? Are there NGOs involved in this area and do they help women who don't wish to get involved in this practice? Can women freely move from one part of Ghana to another? Would they have problems moving? Does the Ghana Human Rights Commission have a policy on this area?
