WHEREABOUTS OF DISAPPEARED MEN UNKNOWN

Forcibly disappeared student Adel Barazi from Damascus was recently seen in Saydnaya Military Prison, where he is at risk of being tortured and otherwise ill-treated. The whereabouts of three men who were arrested together with Adel Barazi remain unknown.

A relative of Adel Barazi, who lives outside of Syria, received information in early 2016 from a former detainee who said he briefly saw Adel Barazi in Saydnaya Military Prison, north of Damascus, before the detainee was released from there. He said Adel Barazi looked "skinny and very pale". Detainees in Saydnaya Military Prison are generally not allowed to contact their families or have access to a lawyer and are routinely subjected to torture and other ill-treatment.

Tourism student Adel Barazi was arrested when a group of uniformed armed men raided his apartment in the Dummar al-Balad area, north-west of Damascus, around midnight on 11 August 2012. The armed men also arrested Adel Barazi's friend, student Ismael Hammoudeh, his brother-in-law, Zaki Kordelo, and his nephew, Mihyar Kordelo, who all lived in the same building. No information about the reason for their arrest was given.

Following their arrest, their family contacted a lawyer, petitioned the Minister of Justice and contacted the Minister of Reconciliation for information about the four men but was unable to find out anything about their fates. Former detainees claimed to have seen Adel Barazi and Ismael Hammoudeh in a detention facility of the Air Force Intelligence in Damascus in September 2012, while Zaki Kordelo and Mihyar Kordelo were reportedly seen in Military Intelligence Branch 215 in Damascus.
