I. Introduction

1. This document contains information supplied by Governments, authorities, civil society and other stakeholders, relating to the follow-up measures to the recommendations made by the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances, following its visits. In paragraph 7 a) of its Resolution 7/12, the Human Rights Council requested Governments that have accepted visits “to give all necessary attention to the Working Group’s recommendations” and invited them to inform the Working Group of “any action they take on those recommendations”. The Human Rights Council reiterates this request in paragraph 16 a) of its Resolution 21/4. Resolution 27/1 renews the mandate of the Working Group in conformity with the terms set forth in Human Rights Council resolution 7/12.
2. The Working Group decided in 2010 to adopt the present format to its follow-up reports with the aim of rendering it reader-friendly and of facilitating the identification of concrete steps taken in response to the specific recommendations and to reflect the opinions of the different actors involved in the process. For this reason, follow-up tables have been created. The tables contain the recommendations of the Working Group, a brief description of the situation when the visit was undertaken, an overview of the steps taken on the basis of the information gathered by the Working Group both from governmental, non-governmental and other sources¹, and the observations of the Working Group on the level of implementation of the recommendations.
3. The Working Group continues to offer its assistance to the Governments and authorities that have received a visit to comply with the recommendations made and stands ready to assist them in their efforts to prevent and combat the heinous crime of enforced disappearance.

II. Regional recommendations

The Working Group:

4. Notes that little progress has been made vis-à-vis its recommendations to Governments and authorities at regional level to depoliticize the issue of missing persons and treat it as a human rights and humanitarian issue.
5. While with some differences, the contributions received generally confirm that much of the impasse surrounding the issue depends on a deliberate choice not to share relevant information with the counterparts or to share it only when some other information is received in exchange. This not only affects the right to truth of the victims and their relatives, but also the right to justice.
6. Recalls that concrete results on the issue of missing persons in the region can only be achieved through sincere and transparent cooperation among all concerned stakeholders and a depoliticization of the matter.
7. Notes that more efforts should be made to fully implement the “Declaration on the Role of the State in Addressing the Issue of Persons Missing as a Consequence of Armed Conflict and Human Rights Abuses”, notably when it comes to its article 7 related to the prosecution of war crimes.
8. Notes the efforts that have been made to address past misidentifications, while emphasizing that this is an issue that needs to be tackled at regional level.
9. Regrets that access to archives and disclosure of relevant information on cases of enforced disappearances remain problematic.
10. On a positive note, in relation to the recommended creation of a regional list of disappeared persons, the Working Group welcomes the creation of the Regional Database of “Active Missing-Persons Cases from the Armed Conflicts in the Former Yugoslavia”

III. Croatia

11. On 12 December 2017, the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances requested the Government of Croatia to provide information on measures taken to implement the recommendations that were made in the report A/HRC/30/38/add.3 (paras. 69-98), after its visit to the country from 15 to 18 June 2014. On 6 February 2018, the Government of Croatia provided the requested information. On 18 July 2018, the Working Group sent the below table for comments to the Government of Croatia, which provided additional information on 14 August 2018.

The Working Group:

12. Thanks the Government of Croatia for the cooperation throughout the process of the follow-up report.

13. While noting that the Directorate for Detained and Missing Persons of the Ministry of the Croatian Veterans continues to conduct activities aimed at resolving cases of all missing persons in the territory of the Republic of Croatia, regardless of their nationality, is concerned about the information that the bilateral cooperation with Serbia, while still formally in place, would have reached a stalemate. It recommends that this cooperation be resumed as soon as possible for the best interests of the victims.

14. Welcomes the creation of the Croatian Government's Commission for the Detainees and Missing Persons and the Task Force on Missing Persons and Burial Sites. It also notes that information gathered by these institutions should be shared with its counterparts at the regional level.

15. Acknowledges the efforts made by Croatia to enable regional dialogue with its neighbours and with international organizations.

16. Is concerned that Croatia has not ratified the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance and reiterates its call on the Government to ratify it. It also recommends to recognize the competence of the Committee on Enforced Disappearances to receive and examine individual complaints.

17. Reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit to establish the crime of enforced disappearance as a separate offence in the criminal legislation in accordance with the Declaration. Enforced disappearance should be considered as a continuing offence in accordance with article 17 (1) of the Declaration, i.e. taking place as long as perpetrators continue to conceal the fate and whereabouts of the disappeared person.

18. Notes that the Directorate for Detained and Missing Persons of the Ministry of Croatian Veterans collects relevant information for clarifying cases of missing persons from a number of competent authorities. It is not clear though whether relevant archives are in fact open and accessible.

19. Acknowledges the legislative efforts aimed at increasing protection of civilian war victims and to ensure that all victims receive fair treatment without discrimination, notably the Draft Proposal of the "Act on the Rights of Military and Civilian War Victims and their Family Members" and the "Act on Missing Persons from the Homeland War". The Working Group recommends the swift adoption of these two acts, which should be prepared in consultation with civil society.

20. Notes the efforts made by the Directorate for Detained and Missing Persons of the Ministry of Croatian Veterans to address past misidentifications, while emphasizing that this is an issue that needs to be tackled at regional level.

21. Notes the signature in 2015 of the "Guidelines for the Advancement of Regional Cooperation in Processing War Crimes and Searching for Missing Persons and the Establishment of Coordination Mechanisms". However, apart from regional meetings, little progress in prosecuting war crimes seems to have been achieved and more concrete results are needed.

22. Reiterates the recommendation formulated at the end of the country visit to initiate a vetting process to identify all government officials who were allegedly involved in the commission of war crimes as well as to improve and systematize vetting measures in the recruitment and appointment of State officials.

23. Welcomes the Government's intention to adopt the "Law on Memorials of the Homeland War", though it has not received information to the effect that memorials will be erected on behalf of all victims regardless of their nationality or ethnicity.

24. Regrets that training to judges and prosecutors on the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance, and other international instruments on human rights and humanitarian law, is not yet offered but takes note of the plans to include such trainings in the forthcoming programs of the Judicial Academy and looks forward to receiving information about their implementation.

Follow up to the recommendations made by the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances, following its country visit to Croatia from 15 to 18 June 2014 (A/HRC/30/38/Add.3, paragraphs 69-98)

A. Regional recommendations to Governments and authorities	See paragraph 8 of the report.	Government Upon learning that a person has disappeared, the competent police station puts up a search notice - search for this person in the "National Missing Persons Records" that is publicly accessible.	The Working Group notes that little progress has been made in this regard.
72. Act with due urgency and speed in the matter of enforced disappearances, as required by the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance and other international obligations.	See paragraphs 8 and 14 of the report.	Government The Republic of Croatia, through the Directorate for Detained and Missing Persons of the Ministry of Croatian Veterans is searching for 1,945 missing people and mortal remains of the fatally injured persons, citizens/nationals of the Republic of Croatia from the period of Homeland War (record as at 15 January 2018), which, by the time of disappearance, can be divided into two basic groups: missing and killed 1991/92 – 1,130 persons (of which 95% are of Croatian nationality); missing and killed 1995 - 815 persons (of which 98% are of Serbian nationality). The Directorate is responsible for resolving cases of all missing citizens/nationals of the Republic of Croatia, regardless of their nationality. Concerning the cases of missing persons during the years 1991/92	The Working Group welcomes the steps taken by the Croatian authorities in the search of missing persons and notes the information that the Directorate for Detained and Missing Persons of the Ministry of Croatian Veterans is responsible for resolving cases of all missing citizens/nationals of the Republic of Croatia, regardless of their nationality. It also recalls that concrete results on the issue of missing persons in the region can only be achieved through sincere and transparent cooperation among all concerned stakeholders and a depoliticization of the matter.

Recommendations (A/HRC/30/38/Add.3)	Situation during the visit (A/HRC/30/38/Add.3)	Measures taken/current situation	Level of implementation and observations (to be completed by the WGEID)
--	---	----------------------------------	---

(1,130) in the armed aggression at the Republic of Croatia - by Serbia, Montenegro and the former JNA, with the armed rebellion of a part of the Serb population in the Republic of Croatia - the Directorate continuously undertakes efforts. It includes activities starting from the acquisition of state-of-the-art equipment and the improvement of field research methodology, strengthening interagency cooperation and analytical activities, conducting informative campaigns for public awareness, in order to resolve the cases. The key obstacle in solving noticeable cases is the lack of information on unregistered, undercover mass and individual graves in formerly occupied territories of the Republic of Croatia, as well as on the secondary graves in which mortal remains were organized and systematically moved. The Republic of Serbia has the documentation regarding forced disappearances during the war in the 1990s, and many witnesses of these disappearances reside in its territory. Consequently, significant progress in addressing these cases can be expected only with the full cooperation of the Republic of Serbia and the opening of the military archives of the former JNA, which is responsible for the organization of war activities in the former occupied territories of the Republic of Croatia. However, the Republic of Serbia has not made any progress in solving the outstanding issues which the Croatian competent authorities have emphasized since 1995. (In 2006, the Republic of Serbia stated that progress in resolving open issues can be expected in accordance with the decision of the National Council for Cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia on the opening and deregistration of documentation in the Military Archives, but subsequently distanced itself from this statement).

Il the activities of the Directorate have ensured the continuous resolution of the cases of people missing and deceased in 1995. During the search process, the Directorate has organized and carried out the exhumation of 20 sanitized cemeteries. Following the humane sanitation (1995) in accordance with the Geneva Convention, the remains of those killed in military and police operations “Bljesak” and “Oluja” were buried. Out of the previously mentioned

		cemeteries, the remains of 1,148 people were exhumed. (There are about 90 persons buried in the sanitized cemeteries that still need to be exhumed - 93% of the cases were exhumed during the course of the process). Out of 1,148 exhumed remains, the remains of 746 people were identified by the process of identification. Funeral care is provided for all identified people in accordance with the wishes of their families, which is financed from the State Budget. In the forthcoming period, a continuation of the exhumation of the remains of the buried in sanitized cemeteries is planned, as well as the continuation of efforts to increase the efficiency of the identification process. In addition to the missing citizens/nationals of the Republic of Croatia, the Directorate undertakes activities to address the cases of citizens/nationals of the Republic of Serbia and Bosnia and Herzegovina who are missing in the territory of the Republic of Croatia. Pursuant to the provisions of the Geneva Conventions, the competent Croatian authorities have transferred all available information and documentation on missing members of armed forces and other persons missing in armed conflicts to the competent authorities of the Republic of Serbia and Bosnia and Herzegovina, whose citizens/nationals have disappeared in the aggression against the Republic of Croatia. Their unconditional transfer was secured, as well as the possibility of joint exploration and marking of possible places of burial, exhumation and identification of the remains. Since the visit of the UN Working Group (June 2014), the Directorate initiated and carried out the following activities, which are of great importance for the Republic of Serbia and Bosnia and Herzegovina: remains of 123 persons buried in 1995 in sanitized cemeteries were exhumed; final identification of the remains of 118 persons exhumed from sanitized cemeteries was organised and carried out; funeral care was organized for all identified persons, and according to

See paragraphs 9 to 11 of the report.	the wishes of the family, the remains of 62 persons were buried in the territory of the Republic of Serbia and Bosnia and Herzegovina; the Republic of Serbia has been relegated the remains of 6 of its nationals killed in aggression while the remains of 11 of its citizens were handed over to Bosnia and Herzegovina; the requests of the competent authorities of the Republic of Serbia and Bosnia and Herzegovina for the implementation of field investigations of possible places of burial of missing persons was responded to. The Republic of Croatia will continue to undertake activities through the Directorate to resolve the remaining cases of about 150 citizens/nationals of the Republic of Serbia and about 120 citizens/nationals of Bosnia and Herzegovina who are missing in the territory of the Republic of Croatia. If the Ministry of the Interior learns of possible mass and/or individual graves of persons whose disappearances is related to the Homeland War, it forwards such information to the Ministry of Croatian Veterans that undertakes further measures within its scope of authority based on such information. Government Faced with a large number of missing persons in the Homeland War, the Republic of Croatia has been committed to addressing this issue since 1991. It primarily includes: the ratification of instruments in the field of international humanitarian law and human rights law, the adaptation of national legislative, effective institutional activity to protect the rights of their families, the prosecution of perpetrators of criminal offenses of war crimes and the symbolic gesture of expressing gratitude to the victims. The most significant is the establishment and operation of institutional mechanisms for resolving cases of missing persons - since 1991, the authorities responsible for solving the cases of missing persons are active in the Republic of Croatia. The legal	The Working Group welcomes the efforts by the Government to solve cases of missing persons and calls for a full implementation of the “Law on Missing Persons in the Homeland War”.

		framework of their activity, with the international instruments of which the Republic of Croatia is a party, is made up of national regulations. The work of these bodies is financed from the State Budget. The search process is based on effective inter-service cooperation and a systematic, comprehensive and transparent approach without discrimination. In the process of seeking missing persons, the Directorate for Detained and Missing Persons of the Ministry of Croatian Veterans cooperates with associations of missing persons and international organizations and observation mechanisms. Assessing the approach and high standards reached by the Republic of Croatia in the process of seeking missing persons with a positive mark, international organizations have suspended the monitoring of the process of seeking missing persons in the Republic of Croatia while the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) closed its office in Zagreb (in 2006) and for the first time in the history of its activity, transferred its data and authority to the competent authorities of one state - the Republic of Croatia. Primarily by the efforts of the competent authorities of the Republic of Croatia, most cases of missing persons have been solved. However, the Republic of Croatia is still searching for 1,945 missing persons and remains of killed people, citizens/nationals of the Republic of Croatia (1526 missing persons and 419 remains of killed people). The Republic of Croatia is dedicated to resolve those cases. Continuous efforts are being made to develop resources and improve the work methodology, and in 2018 the Law on Missing Persons in the Homeland War is planned on being brought into force in order to protect and further improve the rights of families to find out the truth about the fate of missing members. (On the efforts of the Directorate in establishing a joint list of persons missing in the territory of the former Yugoslavia, see statement on Recommendation no. 75.)

75. Reinvigorate efforts to establish a common regional list of the disappeared.	See paragraph 11 of the report.	The Ministry of Interior constantly undertakes measures according to current legal provisions to search for missing persons and to find persons responsible for their disappearance. If the disappearance is war-crime related, the perpetrator is reported to the competent state attorney's office. Government The competent bodies of the Republic of Croatia, together with the International Commission on Missing Persons - ICMP, are the initiators of the initiative to establish a unique list of missing persons in the territory of the former Yugoslavia. The Directorate for Detained and Missing Persons of the Ministry of Croatian Veterans gave full and constructive support during the discussion on the way of how the list should be formed, the data it should include, its updating, the right and level of access, technical and administrative support and, in particular, the issues of standards and competencies. Due to the unresolved issues between the Republic of Serbia and Kosovo, the multilateral agreement was abandoned in favorem of new bilateral agreements. The Directorate signed the agreement on participation in the project “Database of Active Missing-Persons Cases from the Armed Conflicts in the Former Yugoslavia” with ICMP on 31 January 2017 in Sarajevo. The position on participation in the project has been agreed with associations of missing persons in the Republic of Croatia. The delay in the implementation of the project was caused by the prolongation of the Republic of Serbia, who signed the accession treaty project last (October 2017). Upon fulfilment of the above-mentioned conditions, pursuant to the signed Agreement, the Directorate submitted an updated list of all missing persons and remains for which they are still searching to the ICMP on 3 November 2017. Based on the data collected, the ICMP held work presentation regarding the application on 12 December 2017, estimating that the data coordination should be done by the end of 2018. The ICMP will hold training of staff members of the Directorate in	The Working Group welcomes the creation of the Regional Database of “Active Missing-Persons Cases from the Armed Conflicts in the Former Yugoslavia” with the support of the ICMP and the participation of Croatia, Montenegro, Serbia and Kosovo. It also notes the cooperation of the Croatian Government through the submission of an updated list of all missing persons and remains for which they are still searching to the ICMP on 3 November 2017. It encourages the authorities to continue collaborating with this project in order to establish a common regional list of the disappeared and looks forward to receiving more information on its implementation and the forthcoming results in the identification of victims and clarification of cases.

Representatives of the national authorities responsible for accounting for missing persons also expressed their strong determination to work together with the aim of refining and filtering the data presently held in the Database, with the aim of establishing an authoritative and publicly-accessible list of active cases of missing persons from the region. To achieve this, representatives of the national authorities will engage in intensive bilateral and multilateral talks to remove duplicates and to work on resolving cases of joint interest in 2018-2019.

While transparency tools have facilitated the sharing of ICMP's data and DNA results with multiple partners simultaneously in affected countries of the Western Balkans⁵ until now there has been no mechanism by which countries could share their own data with others in a transparent manner and receive updates in real time.

The decision by BIH, Croatia, Kosovo, Montenegro and Serbia to participate in the Database project is a major step forward in terms of strengthening regional cooperation to account for around 12,000 people who are still missing from the region.

The Database contains, at a minimum, the missing person's first name, father's name, last name, date of birth, place of birth, date of disappearance, place of disappearance, municipality of disappearance, identification (if any, date), and countries in which the disappearance has been registered.

ICMP ensures that the data is accessible and searchable by the competent authorities in Croatia, BIH, Kosovo, Montenegro and Serbia on the basis that these authorities reciprocally provide their data relevant to active missing persons cases for inclusion in the Database. In this way, the Database will enhance regional cooperation with a view to resolving missing persons cases from the

Since the working session on which requests were made by both sides (18 December 2016), the Republic of Serbia did not respond to any inquiries of the Directorate and did not provide any information on missing persons/places of tombs from the request of the Republic of Croatia. Moreover, the authorities of the Republic of Serbia have not resolved any case of a missing person sought by the Republic of Croatia. In this respect, the Republic of Serbia does not implement bilateral acts on cooperation with the Republic of Croatia.	See observation under recommendation n° 73.

around 900 in Croatia⁶, 400 in Kosovo, and approximately 450 NN cases buried in municipal plots in Serbia. ICMP has obtained DNA profiles from the NN cases in BIH and Kosovo; however, these do not match any of the thousands of sets of genetic references collected from families who are still searching for their missing relatives. Croatia reports that it has made efforts to identify its NN cases, but without success. The unresolved status of NN cases contributes to suspicions between states, and this exacerbates tensions in the region and undermines regional cooperation to address the very issue of missing persons from the conflicts in the former Yugoslavia.

Where identifications are carried out using traditional methods, misidentifications may take place, despite the authorities' best efforts. It is especially difficult to achieve accurate results by traditional methods when applied to large numbers of mortal remains recovered long after death in complex commingled sites.

Misidentifications have a compound effect on efforts to account for all the missing. When a body is misidentified, the family that has incorrectly received the body in many instances will not have provided family DNA reference samples. Therefore, the actual mortal remains of their family member, if located, will remain unidentified. And the family whose missing relative's remains were misidentified and released incorrectly to another family will not resolve their case even if they have provided DNA reference samples since their relative is buried under someone else's name.

A higher proportion of misidentifications may contribute to an increased number of unidentified mortal remains in mortuaries.

⁶ On 14 August 2018, the Government of Croatia provided the following information: "We would like to draw your attention, that in the context of the introduction of a DNA-led process in 2001 and the problem of misidentification, it is not correct to mention 900 NN cases in Croatia, because the DNA process has been introduced in Croatia since 1994. So, the identification methodology before 2001 was different in Croatia from the methodology in other countries. The result is that the scale of this problem is smaller in the Republic of Croatia."

This will, in a transparent way, address the issues of erecting the memorials, i.e. prescribe the procedure and equalize the criteria for their installation, as well as establish a unique base for these objects. The aforementioned law is to regulate the construction and establishment of memorials related to the Homeland War and positively influence the protection and preservation of the dignity or promotion of values of the Homeland War. This is also supported by the Strategic Plan of the Ministry of Croatian Veterans for the period 2017 - 2019, through the General (Preservation of the Acquisitions and Mitigation of the Negative Consequences of the Homeland War) and Special Objective: Preservation of the Dignity and Promotion of the Value of the Homeland War.	The Working Group welcomes the Government's intention to adopt the "Law on Memorials of the Homeland War", although it has not received information to the effect that memorials will be erected on behalf of all victims regardless of their nationality or ethnicity.

Consequently, Agreement between these four institutions has been signed setting the framework of cooperation: it particularly highlights cooperation in reference to citizen's complaints, visits to places where persons are deprived of their liberty, research, anti-discrimination area, education of staff and in various projects. Within this framework, Ombudswomen regularly meet and discuss challenges in relation to protection and promotion of human rights in the Republic of Croatia. In reference to the plan to make the Ombudsperson more accessible to citizens by opening field presences, during 2014 and 2015 three regional offices have been opened: in Rijeka, Split and Osijek. Additionally, according to the Annual Report for 2016, the Ombudswoman and her staff have been more present in field: eg Roma settlements, local and regional units (in 2016 they visited more than 50 municipalities and cities all over Croatia). This is also reflected in their work: in 2012 they have been working on 2924 case, while in 2016 they worked on 5433 cases.

IV. Montenegro

25. On 12 December 2017, the Working Group requested the Government of Montenegro to provide information on measures taken to implement the recommendations that were made in the report A/HRC/30/38/Add.2 (paras. 64-87), after its visit to the country from 27 to 30 June 2014. On 9 February 2018, the Government of Montenegro provided the requested information. On 18 July 2018, the Working Group sent the below table for comments to the Government of Montenegro, which provided additional information on 15 August 2018.

26. The Working Group thanks the Government of Montenegro for the cooperation throughout the process of the follow-up report.

27. The Working Group appreciates the efforts of the Government to implement the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance. However, it reminds Montenegro that the crime of enforced disappearance should be established as a separate offence in the criminal legislation in accordance with the Declaration and the Convention, to which Montenegro is a party. It also recalls that the offence should be treated as continuous in nature and be punishable by appropriate penalties that take into account its extreme seriousness, as also recommended by the Committee on Enforced Disappearances upon consideration of the report of Montenegro under the Convention (CED/C/MNE/CO/1, paras. 8-11).

28. The WGEID notes that in 2015 the Supreme State Prosecutor adopted a Strategy for Investigating War Crimes with the aim of improving efforts to address impunity for war crimes. However, little progress has been achieved in terms of investigation and prosecution of war crimes, both for pending and new cases. The information received about a restrictive interpretation of the law, which has led to acquittal in some cases and lenient conviction to low cadres only in other, is of particular concern. The Working Group calls on the prosecutorial authorities to be more proactive and encourages the Government to support efforts to fight impunity for war crimes, including enforced disappearances, as also recommended by the Committee on enforced disappearances (CED/C/MNE/CO/1, paras. 16-17).

29. The WGEID notes the information that all cases of compensation for victims of war crimes before the Montenegrin courts have been resolved and that, in total, 5,714,656.20 euros of compensation was granted. However, the WGEID would appreciate receiving more detailed information on how many of these cases concerned victims of enforced disappearances and the number of lawsuits where perpetrators were identified and sentenced in parallel criminal proceedings.

30. The Working Group notes the Government's efforts to meet the recommendation to set up a programme of comprehensive reparation that includes not only compensation but also restitution, rehabilitation, satisfaction, including restoration of dignity and reputation, and guarantees of non-repetition. It wishes to emphasize though the need for more to be done in this regard, in the light of the fact that only economic compensations have been paid so far.

31. The WGEID recommends that a category of relative of missing person is included in Article 12 of the Law on Free Legal Aid.

32. The WGEID regrets that training to judges and prosecutors on the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance and other international instruments on human rights and humanitarian law is not offered yet.

33. The WGEID reiterates its compliments to Montenegro for having been the first – and so far the only – country which has provided the Working Group in February 2016, outside the follow-up process, with specific information on the measures taken or to be taken to implement the recommendations contained in the country visit report.

The WGEID encourages the authorities to continue collaborating with this project in order to establish a common regional list of the disappeared and looks forward to receiving more information on its implementation and the forthcoming results in the identification of victims and clarification of cases.

To achieve this, representatives of the national authorities will engage in intensive bilateral and multilateral talks to remove duplicates and to work on resolving cases of joint interest in 2018-2019. While transparency tools have facilitated the sharing of ICMP's data and DNA results with multiple partners simultaneously in affected countries of the Western Balkans, until now there has been no mechanism by which countries could share their own data with others in a transparent manner and receive updates in real time. The decision by BIH, Croatia, Kosovo, Montenegro and Serbia to participate in the Database project is a major step forward in terms of strengthening regional cooperation to account for around 12,000 people who are still missing from the region. The Database contains, at a minimum, the missing person's first name, father's name, last name, date of birth, place of birth, date of disappearance, place of disappearance,

		On 29 August 2014 at a historic event hosted by ICMP, Chair of the Presidency of Bosnia and Herzegovina Bakir Izetbegović, President of the Republic of Croatia Ivo Josipović, President of Montenegro Filip Vujanović, and President of the Republic of Serbia Tomislav Nikolić signed the Declaration in Mostar, BIH. The purpose of the Declaration is to define the best practice principles to help guide States in accounting for the missing from conflict and human rights abuses. The first signatories include those countries and their successor states that were party to the Dayton Peace Agreement. Of the 40,000 persons missing from the armed conflicts of the 1990s in the former Yugoslavia, more than 70 percent have been accounted for. This is unprecedented in any post-conflict context anywhere in the world. By signing the declaration, BIH, Croatia, Montenegro and Serbia demonstrated the growing ability of States to assume ownership of the process of accounting for large numbers of missing persons, through their domestic institutions and through specialized international organizations, such as ICMP. The Declaration highlights the primary responsibility of State authorities in addressing the issue of the missing and the need to ensure that mechanisms and methods employed conform to human rights standards and the rule of law. In addition, the Declaration seeks to ensure that the rights of family members of the missing are upheld at all times, and that survivors and society as a whole have access to information regarding the fate of the missing and that proper investigations are undertaken in the pursuit of truth and justice. The Declaration seeks to ensure that past wrongs are addressed through accountable and just State institutions. The Declaration is being implemented fully by signatory states. All signatory states continue to uphold the rights of survivors to know the fate of their missing relatives, by conducting effective investigations into missing-persons cases (Article 2). All signatory states have built effective domestic institutions, i.e. government commissions on missing persons (Article 3). All signatory states are cooperating regionally and internationally for the purpose of elucidating the fate of the missing (Article 4). All signatory states are implementing measures that conform to the requirements of human rights obligations and the rule of law, including those of the criminal justice system (Article 5). All signatory states, through effective investigations, are addressing the need to establish the circumstances surrounding disappearances and the issue of impunity (Article 6). All signatory states have established dedicated war crimes prosecutor's offices, thereby emphasizing the role of the judiciary (Article 7). Government See answer no. 78. Other See Recommendation 77.	The WGEID regrets that training to judges and prosecutors on the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance and other international instruments on human rights and humanitarian law is not offered. Establish enforced disappearance as a separate offence in accordance with the definition contained in the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance. The offence of enforced disappearance should be punishable by appropriate penalties that take into account its extreme seriousness.	See paragraph 12, 25, 27, 26 and 28 of the report.	Government By ratification of the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearances in 2011, Montenegro has confirmed that the widespread or systematic commission of enforced disappearances constitutes a crime against humanity under applicable international law and entails consequences provided for in accordance with applicable international law. Although Montenegro does not prescribe enforced disappearance as a special criminal offense, it is incorporated in criminal offenses: Unlawful deprivation of liberty under Article 162; Abduction from Article 164, Crime against humanity under Article 427 and War crime against civilian population under Article 428 of the Criminal Code of Montenegro. When it comes to the criminal offense of Unlawful Deprivation of Liberty (Article 162), the protective object of this criminal offense is the freedom of person and the right to freedom of movement, and the act is set as a detention, holding as closed, or unlawful deprivation or restraint of freedom of movement in another way. The qualified form of a criminal offense exists if it is committed by an official by the abuse of his position or authority. The execution of the basic form of the criminal offense Abduction referred to Article 164 consists in the removal or retention of a person by the use of force, threat, deceit or in other way. However, it reminds that enforced disappearance should be established as a separate offence in the criminal legislation in accordance with the Declaration and the Convention, to which Montenegro is a party. It also recalls that the offence should be treated as continuous in nature and be punishable by appropriate penalties that take into account its extreme seriousness, as also recommended by the Committee on enforced disappearance upon consideration of the report of Montenegro under the Convention (CED/C/MNE/CO/1, paras. 8-11).

In relation to that, we are pointing out that the Special State Prosecution Office continuously works in all the cases formed because of these criminal offences. In the procedure of reconsideration of earlier cases which are solved final, in all the cases information and data were collected through the mechanisms of International legal assistance from the Office of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia, upon the rogatory letters of the Special State Prosecution Office seeking to perform the search of the protected database in order to collect evidence referring to these cases. Furthermore, Special prosecutor and associate who work on the cases of war crimes, stayed in Hague Tribunal where they performed the search of the available database of the Tribunal, for the purpose of finding and collecting evidence for the cases that are formed in the Special State Prosecution Office and are in preliminary investigation phase, as well as for collecting and finding evidence for potentially new cases of war crimes in which perpetrators of those criminal offences are citizens of Montenegro. Other In October 2015 the Supreme Court of Montenegro rejected	disappearances, as also recommended by the Committee on enforced disappearances (CED/C/MNE/CO/1, paras. 16-17).

The Court accepted the Government's request for extension of deadline to respond and it was now set for 2 July 2018. Under the pressure from the European Commission, CAT and WGEID, inter alia, the Supreme State Prosecutor Ivica Stankovic adopted in May 2015 the Strategy for Investigation of War Crimes, outlining the steps that should promote proactive investigations. The Strategy also stated that the prosecutors will revisit old crimes where the prosecution failed to secure convictions. However, there is no evidence that the Special Prosecutors Office has ever reviewed potential for new prosecutions of the same cases and there are certainly no results of it. According to the report of the Special Prosecutor from April 2018, all 6 criminal complaints related to war crimes were rejected. The only case "alive" is the one originating from Kosovo and Serbia against Montenegrin national Vlado Zmajevic for crimes he committed in Kosovo against civilian population. Such a stand is an enormous blow to the face of justice and international humanitarian law and it should not be forgotten. Furthermore, the EU expert Maurizio Salustro has also criticised the wrong interpretation of law in the Bukovica case, also leading to acquittal of all indicted. Due to very restrictive interpretation of the law, only 4 persons were found guilty in the Morinj case and only the low level executors of ill-treatment of detainees in the army camp in Morinj. No charges were ever brought against persons who were in charge of the camp, in spite of existing legal grounds for that. the capacities for the search for missing persons during armed conflicts. On this occasion, on other regional consultations and strengthening of regional cooperation in the processing of war crimes and searches for missing persons on April 10, 2017 in Montenegro, Supreme State Prosecutor of Montenegro said that the number of missing persons "is not a digit for us, but every single destiny and because of that it is necessary to make an effort in order to ensure their identification as soon as it is possible". On January 26, 2018, the third regional consultations on strengthening regional cooperation in the processing of war crimes and searches for missing persons were held in Sarajevo. The meeting is part of the UNDP regional project "Strengthening Regional Cooperation in War Crimes Processing and Searching for Missing Persons" (2017-2019). President and members of the Commission for Missing Persons of Montenegro participated at the meeting, who presented the report on work for the previous year, the plans for 2018, the work on harmonization of special procedures related to the process of exhumation, identification and repatriation of human remains, and reaching an agreement on procedures related to future cooperation and coordination of activities. It was agreed to organize more bilateral meetings in the forthcoming period between competent authorities for missing persons as well as to organize various trainings for members and employees in bodies dealing with missing persons issues.

In addition, the President of Montenegro has appointed a personal envoy to the Regional Expert Group for consideration of the Draft Statute of the Regional Commission for the Establishment of Facts on War Crimes and Other Serious Human Rights Violations Committed in the Territory of the former SFRY from 1 January 1991 to 31 December 2001 - REKOM.

V. Serbia

34. On 12 December 2017, the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances requested the Government of Serbia to provide information on measures taken to implement the recommendations that were made in the report A/HRC/30/38/Add.1 (paras. 86-118), after its visit to the country in June 2014. On 13 February 2018, the Government of Serbia provided the requested information. On 18 July 2018, the Working Group sent the below table for comments to the Government of Serbia, which provided additional information on 3 September 2018.

The Working Group:

35. Thanks the Government of Serbia for the cooperation throughout the process of the follow-up report.

36. Notes the contribution of the Belgrade delegation to the Working Group on Missing Persons, which have led to some, though limited, progress.

37. Welcomes the amendments to the Criminal Code made in 2016 to include enforced disappearance as a separate offence among the crimes against humanity listed in article 371. However, enforced disappearance is not yet conceived as an autonomous crime outside the context of a widespread and systematic attack against the civilian population. It reminds that enforced disappearance should be established as a separate offence in the criminal legislation in accordance with the Declaration and the Convention, to which Serbia is a party. It also recalls that the offence should be treated as continuous in nature and be punishable by appropriate penalties that take into account its extreme seriousness, as also recommended by the Committee on enforced disappearance upon consideration of the report of Serbia under the Convention (CED/C/SRB/CO/1, paras. 11-12).

38. Is concerned at the information that the bilateral cooperation with Croatia, while still formally in place and in progress, would have reached a stalemate as the Protocol is being revised. It reiterates that this cooperation be resumed as soon as possible for the best interests of the victims.

39. Reiterates the recommendations formulated at the end of the 2014 visit to adopt a strategy to address the issue of missing persons in a comprehensive manner as well as a law recognizing the status and rights of relatives of missing persons.

40. Notes that the Commission on Missing Persons of the Government of Serbia has acted quite promptly when it has received information on potential mass graves in the past.

41. Notes the additional funding allocated for an audio and video recording system for courtrooms of the Special Department of the Higher Court of Belgrade and the appointment of new judges, a new prosecutor and a new prosecutorial strategy. It notes, however, that war crimes proceedings continue to be rather slow with few convictions and shares the recommendations formulated by the Committee on Enforced Disappearances to the Serbian Government in 2015 to ensure that all cases of enforced disappearance that may have been committed by agents of the State or by persons or groups of persons acting with their authorization, support or acquiescence in the context of past armed conflicts are investigated thoroughly and impartially without delay (see CED/C/SRB/CO/1, para. 14).

42. Reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit to establish an agreement on war crime cases with the authorities of Kosovo in order to establish an operational protocol on cooperation in the investigation and prosecution of war crimes and regrets that cooperation with the Kosovo authorities on war crimes cases is currently non-existent.

43. Notes the “Law on the Protection Programme for Participants in Criminal Proceedings” and appreciates the detailed reply provided by the Government on the available protection programme and measures. It is concerned though that such measures are limited, and that no systematic and comprehensive assistance exists. Furthermore, protection of victims and witnesses in war crimes trials appears to be confined to a limited time during testimony rather than being provided throughout the proceedings.

44. Notes the National Strategy for the Prosecution of War Crimes as well as the fact that this Strategy sets “a raised level of awareness and an improved public attitude toward the need for war crimes trials” as one of its priorities. However, in practice, there seems to be little awareness among the general public nor specific activities aimed at raising it, also due to the uncondusive political climate.

45. With respect to vetting, while there are bylaws adopted in 2016 that would allow avoiding the recruitment in public services of individuals involved in the armed conflict, in practice cases of individuals still holding public positions continue to be reported.

46. Hopes that the new “Gender Equality Law” to be adopted in the fourth quarter of 2018 ensure a gender-sensitive approach when designing and implementing reparation programmes, as also recommended by the Committee on Enforced Disappearances (CED/C/SRB/CO/1, para. 26 (a)), after the 2015 review of the Serbia report under the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance.

47. Notes the Analysis of the Level of Alignment of Serbia’s Normative Framework with the EU Victims’ Directive submitted to the Ministry of Justice in June 2016 and hopes that the outcome of this project would bring Serbia’s legislation and practice vis-à-vis victims of enforced disappearances in line with its obligations under the Declaration and the Convention.

48. Acknowledges the development of a “Draft Law on Free Legal Aid” and looks forward to its adoption and effective implementation, including with regard to relatives of missing persons.

49. Welcomes that bylaws were passed and that a prior declaration of the person as dead is no longer required to obtain reparation. However, it remains concerned that reparation continues to be available only to victims of former enemy forces. In this respect, it also reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit to ensure the equitable allocation of existing resources for the civilian victims of war in order to eradicate the discrimination between, inter alia, the budget for civilian and military victims of war.

50. Appreciates the information that the Commission on Missing Persons of the Government of Serbia regularly meets with representatives of families of missing persons, updates them on the progress and attends all commemorations of important dates, memorial services and conferences organised by associations.

51. Notes that a new law on access of information is in preparation and hopes that it will properly address the issue of access to archives and to information that could potentially lead to clarification in cases of missing persons.

52. Regrets that training to judges and prosecutors on the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance and other international instruments on human rights and humanitarian law is not offered.

53. Reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit to pay equal attention to all victims, regardless of their nationality, in respect of memorials. This principle should be integrated into future activities related to this element of reparation.

54. Notes that the Action Plan on the Protection of National Minorities in the Republic of Serbia aims at preventing hate speech, including through the media and social networks. It regrets though that educational materials addressing recent history do not seem to aim at addressing ethnic polarization and promoting pluralism.

issues of missing persons in Kosovo and Metohija (UNMIK, ICRC, the Pristina delegation and the Belgrade delegation) agreed to develop a framework strategy by the end of 2017 that would set clear priorities for the next two years. The Belgrade delegation was the only one to keep its word and prepare a strategy, which it presented on 21 December 2017 in the meeting of the Resource Centre in Pristina.

Government: additional information

With regards to allegations of the Humanitarian Law Centre that there is an obvious lack of strategic activities of the state on improvement of cooperation with EULEX and Provisional Institutions of Self-Government in Priština, we would like to point that the Republic of Serbia also expressed its readiness for cooperation in the previous period through inviting Ms. Alexandra Papadopoulou, Head of EULEX in AP Kosovo and Metohija, to establish the official contact with Belgrade, and those invitations have not been positively answered to by EULEX.

Humanitarian Law Center

The legal frame for cooperation in disclosing information between the states was based on several protocols and agreements starting from 2004, but, so far, it has not resulted in a significant number of mass graves being found. The last discovery of the existence of a mass grave occurred in December 2013 in Rudnica. It was the result of an exchange of information within the Working Group on Missing Persons. In the period 2014-2018 there have been no discoveries, exhumations or identifications of missing persons on the territory of Serbia. An investigation was carried out on the location of Kiževak near Raška, and was allegedly discontinued due to bad weather and lack of funds in December 2016.

The HLC believes that the inefficiency in achieving any results in the five-years' period demonstrates that there is not enough exchange of information between the states.

According to the opinion of representatives of the competent institutions in Croatia and Serbia, they both believe that the opposite side is concealing certain information about the locations of possible mass graves, or neglecting the process of identification. According to the international institutions, the cooperation of Serbia and Croatia in the search for missing persons is slow and needs stronger political commitment and resources. Particularly noticeable is the absence of strategic activities related to the improvement of cooperation with the European Union Rule of Law Mission in Kosovo (EULEX) and provisional institutions of self-government in Prishtina, or to the establishment of cooperation with the Kosovo Specialist Prosecutor's Office in The Hague.

Failure to identify the problems that exist in cooperation is particularly worrying, since the last indictment for crimes in Kosovo was raised in 2014.

Regional cooperation through exchange of information is partially being realised through the war crimes trials. Locating a mass grave in the Sotin Case was a result of mutual cooperation between the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor (OWCP), the Commission on Missing Persons, and the Croatian authorities. However, this is the only case to date where criminal prosecution has led to locating the burial sites of missing persons. In all other cases completed or pending before the War Crimes Department, either the OWCP or the Court inquired into the whereabouts of bodies of victims that have not been located, instead of focusing on establishing that the accused were responsible for the killing.

There is commitment at the high level, as well as pledges of regional cooperation, but implementation is lagging behind.

88. Ensure high-level commitment to clarifying the fate and whereabouts of all missing persons, bringing all perpetrators to justice and ensuring full reparation for all victims.	See paragraphs 9 and 11 of the report.	The impetus mostly comes from international organisations (e.g. ICRC) rather than from the authorities. There is high-level commitment by all sides but deliverables are lingering. Humanitarian Law Center In consequence of the cross-border nature of the armed conflicts in the former Yugoslavia, victims, witnesses, perpetrators and evidence are for the most part not located within the territory of a single state and do not fall within the competence of a single national judiciary. Additionally, due to the fact that almost all former Yugoslavia successor states ban extradition of their citizens for trials in other countries, prosecution of war crimes committed on the territory of the former Yugoslavia is simply impossible without effective judicial cooperation among the countries in the region. provided their data on active missing persons cases to ICMP for inclusion in the Database.

In December 2017 ICMP convened a regional meeting to present the Regional Database.

The meeting brought together the Board of Directors of the Missing Persons Institute of Bosnia and Herzegovina, chairpersons of the commissions on missing persons from Kosovo, Montenegro, and Serbia, and the Assistant Minister in charge of the Directorate for Detainees and Missing Persons of Croatia.

ICMP's regional partners in the Western Balkans expressed high praise for the Database and concluded that it will be an invaluable tool in their future work.

Representatives of the national authorities responsible for accounting for missing persons also expressed their strong determination to work together with the aim of refining and filtering the data presently held in the Database, with the aim of establishing an authoritative and publicly-accessible list of active cases of missing persons from the region. To achieve this, representatives of the national authorities will engage in intensive bilateral and multilateral talks to remove duplicates and to work on resolving cases of joint interest in 2018-2019.

While transparency tools have facilitated the sharing of ICMP's data and DNA results with multiple partners simultaneously in affected countries of the Western Balkans, until now there has been no mechanism by which countries could share their own data with others in a transparent manner and receive updates in real time.

The decision by BIH, Croatia, Kosovo, Montenegro and Serbia to participate in the Database project is a major step forward in terms of strengthening regional cooperation to account for around 12,000 people who are still missing from the region.

occasion, the Chairperson of the Committee for Imprisoned and Missing Individuals of the Croatian Government Mr. Stjepan Sucic, while presenting the results achieved in 2017 and the plans for 2018, said the Government of the Republic of Croatia was not satisfied with the existing legal framework with the Republic of Serbia and was reviewing the Agreement on Cooperation in the Search for Missing Persons, which he said was the reason why they had stopped cooperating with the Commission on Missing Persons of the Government of the Republic of Serbia. The Chairperson of the Commission, Mr. Veljko Odalovic, then voiced his dissatisfaction with the current situation, noting that legal mechanisms were in place for such situations and the Serbian party should have been officially notified and adding that activities should continue normally until a new adequate legal framework is found. Mr. Odalovic also said it was necessary for the Croatian party to arrange a meeting to agree on future cooperation mechanisms that would be acceptable to both sides. The UNDP representative undertook to meet with Mr. Sucic and explain to him the need for a bilateral meeting on this issue, which should be held in Zagreb and be in accordance with the existing legal framework. It should also be noted that work is underway to put in place legal arrangements that would enable the formation of a prosecution office that would process war crimes committed in Kosovo and Metohija within the framework of this project, to ensure that all institutions that could contribute to this issue are involved in it.

The tendency of explicit or tacit refusal of Provisional Institutions of Self-Government in Priština to act upon applications for mutual legal assistance of the War Crime Prosecutor Office of the Republic of Serbia is prominent due to limitation, and then termination of mandate of EULEX Mission on the territory of AP Kosovo and Metohija.

The cooperation of War Crimes Prosecutor Office with the Prosecutor Office of the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals is continuous and intense. The cooperation is carried out through the Liaison Officer of the Office of the Prosecutor at the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals and promoted through regular periodic meetings. Main directions for cooperation are discussed and activity schedule is harmonized at the meetings held at the level of prosecutors (War Crime Prosecutor of the Republic of Serbia - Chief Prosecutor of the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals), whereas working meetings and consultations at the level of case processors (deputy War Crime Prosecutors – prosecutors, investigators of the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals) are used for evidence, expertise and experience sharing.

Through the Liaison Officer, the War Crime Prosecutor Office submitted 152 applications for assistance to the Prosecutor Office of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia and the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals. Regional cooperation on war crimes cases is of immense importance, because it allows for the transfer of criminal proceedings and exchange of evidence, which enable prosecution of those suspects who would otherwise be inaccessible to the judicial authorities of any country other than their own.

OWCP has not had cooperation with the Kosovo institutions during 2017.

Lack of cooperation is explained by the OWCP as a consequence of the end of the EULEX mandate to start new investigations in Kosovo since May 2014, which mandate has been transferred to Kosovo Prosecutors, who refuse to cooperate with the OWCP. In more than three years, the OWCP has not issued a single indictment for crimes committed in Kosovo. When urged by the HLC to take action on the criminal complaints lodged for crimes in Kosovo, the OWCP have replied that they are unable to investigate the crimes committed in Kosovo, because according to Kosovo’s Ministry of Justice, the OWCP has no territorial jurisdiction to investigate acts “assumed to have taken place in Kosovo”.

The HLC stands on the point that the question of cooperation between prosecutors' offices in Serbia and Kosovo must be a part of the Brussels negotiations between these states, in such a way as to enable further cooperation of both sides in prosecuting the war crimes. The Republic of Serbia has the right not to recognize Kosovo as an independent state, but it cannot let this political decision interfere with its legal obligation to prosecute war crimes within its jurisdiction.

All trials in which the indictment has been approved, after the adopting of the National Strategy (February 2016) until the end of the 2017, are the result of the regional cooperation, but from the quantity of data a conclusion cannot be reached about the quality of the transferred cases or about the quality of the regional cooperation itself. In this period, a total of ten cases have been adjudicated, and all of them, except one which was transferred by the ICTY, were the result of regional cooperation.

The OWCP did not participate in an annual regional conference on September 2016 on the Brijuni Islands in Croatia. As the decision not to participate in the conference came at the time bilateral relations between Serbia and Croatia had hit a low point, the HLC sees this as alarming evidence of political interference with the judiciary, which undermines the implementation of both the Action Plan for Chapter 23 and the National Strategy for the Prosecution of War Crimes. Namely, the Action Plan for Chapter 23 foresees joint activities among prosecutor's offices in the region in the field of war crimes prosecution, and the National Strategy states as one of its goals to "give support to the judiciary through improving regional cooperation", and specifically mentions the participation of the OWCP in the regional conferences of war crimes prosecutors.

made a very valuable documentation about remains found on the territory of conflicts, particularly on the territory of the Autonomous Province Kosovo and Metohija (reports on autopsy and identification, reports of forensic teams of the Prosecutor Office of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia performing exhumations of bodies and performing investigations of persons, objects and scenes, as well as other similar documents)⁷. Those data are very significant for the completion of records of the Commission on Missing Persons and further activities on resolving the fate of persons still registered as missing.

We believe that the update and completion of records of the Commission on Missing Persons with new information will contribute to the quality of proceedings under the jurisdiction of War Crime Prosecutor Office.

Good cooperation of the War Crime Prosecutor Office and the International Commission on Missing Persons (ICMP) is also indicated by the statement of Mr. Matthew Holliday, ICMP Head of Western Balkans Program (5 October 2017), who pointed out that the International Commission on Missing Persons has the most successful cooperation with the War Crime Prosecutor Office, both in terms of statistical indicators reflected by the applications submitted and in terms of establishing a mutual relation of trust among representatives of that War Crime Prosecutor Office and the International Commission on Missing Persons⁸.

⁸ ICMP has successfully identified about 1300 victims whose bodies were exhumed on the territory of the Republic of Serbia. According to ICMP data, there is an ongoing search for about 12000 more missing persons on the territory of former Yugoslavia. At the meeting it was arranged that ICMP will continue providing assistance to the War Crime Prosecutor Office in the same manner and under the same terms, through ICMP Office in Tuzla, and relocation of the laboratory to Hague will not incur additional costs.

With regards to allegations of the Humanitarian Law Centre about obstruction of access to relevant information and documents of public importance, we would like to point that the evidence of crimes against Serbs committed on the territory of AP Kosovo and Metohija, collected by UNMIK, has been systematically destroyed over the past years, which is why UNMIK was not able to hand over evidence of crimes against Serbs to EULEX. On 15 August 2012, the archives of the Police Station in Peć, the database – archives in the building of the EU in Dragodan in Priština, and the files of the Headquarters of Kosovo Police in Priština were all set on fire. The main witnesses of various investigations of the so-called high profile suspects for crimes against Serbs have been assassinated over the years.

In the HLC's view, inefficiency in the search for missing persons can be explained by a lack of political will, which is reflected in the insufficient commitment of the competent Serbian authorities to the search for missing persons who belong to other ethnicities, their insufficient capacity for the search (the main department of Commission for Missing Persons Serbia employs only 4 people), the lack of action and engagement on the part of the prosecuting authorities in the search for missing persons and in the

Because of that, the HLC believes that the two aforementioned activities are absolutely inadequate and that the issue of cross-border cooperation between the institutions responsible for missing persons in the region must be addressed. A recent incident which occurred at a meeting where the exhumation and identification of the mortal remains of persons who went missing in Croatia were discussed clearly showed how important regional cooperation is. states in addressing this issue. In this document, the states reaffirmed their commitment to addressing the issue of persons missing as a consequence of armed conflict and human rights abuses as part of the state's responsibility to ensure lasting peace and improve cooperation and reconciliation in democratic societies which promote and protect human rights. In this context, the OMP welcomes the initiative for regional conferences on missing persons at the level of heads of state, to highlight the importance of the results achieved so far and to encourage further improvement and expediting of the process, which is becoming increasingly complex and difficult. Regional conferences were held in Sarajevo, Zagreb, Pristina and Belgrade in 2017. The International Red Cross Committee received reports of 34,987 cases of missing persons in the region; according to the information provided by that organisation as of November 2017, after 20 years of searching, 10,373 persons are still considered missing.

The Republic of Serbia has failed to implement fully the Declaration on the Role of the State in Addressing the Issue of Persons Missing as a Consequence of Armed Conflict and Human Rights Abuses.

The Presidents of Serbia, Montenegro, Croatian and BiH signed in 2014 the Declaration on the role of the state in resolving the issue of missing persons in connection with the wars and violations of human rights. In Article 7 of the Declaration, Serbia has committed to prioritising the prosecution of those perpetrators who are responsible for the forced disappearance of persons and their further concealment. With the exception of the Sotin Case, Serbia has not demonstrated a sincere commitment to this goal. Moreover, after the release of "Rudnica" Dossier, in which the HLC presented evidence indicating that units commanded by the current Chief of Staff of the Serbian Army, Ljubisa Diković, participated in crimes in Kosovo whose victims were missing for 15 years, and some of them up to this day, President Nikolić issued a warning through the media to the OWCP to “watch out what they are digging up in Serbia.” Serbia will have to prove its intention of resolving the fate of the missing, first of all, through the prosecution of high-ranking perpetrators, because only they have the actual capacity to continue to prevent their discovery.

ICMP

On 29 August 2014 at a historic event hosted by ICMP, Chair of the Presidency of Bosnia and Herzegovina Bakir Izetbegović, President of the Republic of Croatia Ivo Josipović, President of Montenegro Filip Vujanović, and President of the Republic of Serbia Tomislav Nikolić signed the Declaration in Mostar, BIH.

The purpose of the Declaration is to define the best practice principles to help guide States in accounting for the missing from conflict and human rights abuses. The first signatories include those countries and their successor states that were party to the Dayton Peace Agreement. Of the 40,000 persons missing from the armed conflicts of the 1990s in the former Yugoslavia, more than 70 percent have been accounted for. This is unprecedented in any post-conflict context anywhere in the world.

By signing the declaration, BIH, Croatia, Montenegro and Serbia demonstrated the growing ability of States to assume ownership of the process of accounting for large numbers of missing persons, through their domestic institutions and through specialized international organizations, such as ICMP.

The Declaration highlights the primary responsibility of State authorities in addressing the issue of the missing and the need to ensure that mechanisms and methods employed conform to human rights standards and the rule of law. In addition, the Efforts to address the issue of missing persons received a significant impetus with the signing of the Declaration on Improving Relations and Resolving Open Issues between the Republic of Serbia and the Republic of Croatia, signed by the Prime Minister of the Republic of Serbia Aleksandar Vučić and the President of the Republic of Croatia Kolinda Grabar Kitarović on 20 June 2016 in Subotica. Resolving open issues will be key if any major progress is to be made in the efforts to find missing persons. However, further progress in this process will depend on further intensification and coordination of activities of all competent authorities and institutions in resolving this issue with the Republic of Croatia, to ensure systematic, sustained progress in this field and to help resolve more missing persons cases on both parties' lists. In bilateral contacts with the Croatian side at all levels, the Serbian side should continue insisting on: verification of unreported missing persons cases according to the ICRC criteria; expediting the process of identification of already exhumed bodily remains; exhuming the remaining registered grave sites of persons of Serb ethnicity in the Republic of Croatia and identification of already exhumed bodily remains; resolving the cases of missing members of the former Yugoslav People's Army and other persons on the missing persons list of the Republic of Serbia; consistent compliance with the signed intercountry cooperation agreements in this area, because further progress in this process will require intensified operational activities in 2016, including continual bilateral meetings between the competent government bodies responsible for seeking missing persons, since the last meeting of this kind was held on 2 and 3 June 2015 in Belgrade; and faster access to relevant documentation. Furthermore, the Protocol on Cooperation in the Search for Missing Persons between the Government of the Republic of Serbia and the Council of Minister of Bosnia and Herzegovina governs cooperation in this area, taking into account its humanitarian and political importance and specific nature. This Protocol should lay the foundations for further improvement of bilateral and regional cooperation in this area. According to the Protocol, the competent authorities of both parties will agree on and establish working rules and procedures for its implementation. The Serbian party has already done this and has presented the Bosnian party with the Draft Working Rules and Procedures. Until this text is agreed and endorsed by both parties, the practice that has been observed in relations between the two parties' competent authorities to date will continue to apply.

On the other hand, representatives of Kosovo institutions indicate the lack of Serbian will to open the archives and deliver all the relevant information regarding the secret locations containing bodies of Albanians. The HLC considers that the lack of political will in both Serbia and Kosovo impedes the efficient search for the missing persons, as is indicated by the ever-slower dynamics of the exhumation and identification of human remains, as well as of the finding of the locations with victims' remains. Other The contribution may not be easy to measure unless a specific mass grave is discovered. After the most recent amendments to the Criminal Code made in November 2016, enforced disappearances have finally been explicitly mentioned in our criminal legislation. Protection is provided through the Protection Programme, which can include application of protective measures (physical protection of persons and property, change of place of residence or relocation to another prison institution, concealing of identity and ownership information, as well as change of identity). The Protection Programme can be implemented before, during and after completion of criminal proceedings against criminal offences against the constitutional order and security; against humanity and other values protected by international law, as well as against organized crime. protected person with the required financial, psychological, social and legal assistance and all government bodies, organisations and services must render assistance to the Protection Unit, and at the its request undertake activities within their purview as required for implementation of the Protection Programme. Where necessary, the Protection Unit can also establish international cooperation while applying measures set under the Protection Programme. Decisions on inclusion, extension, suspension and termination of the Protection Program are passed by the Commission for Implementation of the Witness Protection Program, comprising three members. One member of the Commission, who also manages its work, is a judge of the Supreme Court of Serbia, the second member is the Deputy Republic Public Prosecutor and the third member is the Manager of the Protection Unit. All members of the Commission have their deputies and are appointed for the period of five years and can be reappointed, except the Manager of the Protection Unit and his/her deputy, who are members of the Commission virtue of the post held. Since such system and the Protection Programme have been established in 2006, constant evaluation has been made and, where necessary, mainly technical amendments to the Law have been proposed to ensure more efficient application of protection measures and their adjustment to social and legal dynamics. So far, the implementation of the Protection Programme has fully justified its existence and proved its efficiency, because since the beginning of its implementation in 2006, all persons included in the Protection Programme have been safe and all relevant assistance has been provided to them, in accordance with the law.

It should also be noted that the Criminal Procedure Code (Official Gazette of RS Nos. 72/2011, 101/2011, 121/2012, 32/2013, 45/2013 and 55/2014) provides for a range of witness protection measures, from basic protection which implies that the proceeding authority must protect every witness against insult, threat and any other assault, and in this context a responsible person may be issued a warning and a fine may be imposed on him/her, and in case of violence or serious threat to a witness a responsible person can be criminally prosecuted and a Public Prosecutor or a court can request from the police to undertake witness protection measures.

Furthermore, under the conditions set by the law, a Public Prosecutor or a court can grant the status of a particularly vulnerable witness. A particularly vulnerable witness can be examined only through the proceeding authority, and where necessary with assistance of an expert – a psychologist, a social worker or another expert. A particularly vulnerable witness can be examined using technical devices for transmitting images and sound, without presence of parties and other participants in the procedure in a room where the witness is located, which can be an apartment of the protected witness or premises of an authorised institution professionally qualified for examining particularly vulnerable persons. A particularly vulnerable witness cannot be confronted with the defendant, unless the defendant explicitly requires so, and the proceeding authority allows it.

If circumstances exist which indicate that by giving statement or answering certain questions a witness would expose himself/herself or persons close to him/her to a threat for life, health, freedom or property of substantial size, the court may grant the status of a protected witness to such witness and authorise one or more special protection measures (examining of a protected witness under the conditions and in the manner which provide that his/her identity is not revealed to the public, and under certain conditions, exceptionally not even to the defendant and his/her defence counsel).

The Republic of Serbia is committed to ensuring the protection of civilian invalids of war and members of their families, as well as of families of civilian victims of war. The current regulations of the Republic of Serbia precisely define the conditions for exercising the right to compensation or pension for the victims of war.

The right to family pension is a personal right that, in accordance with the *Law on Pension and Disability Insurance*⁹, is granted to members of the family of the deceased insuree or beneficiary of right, while fulfilling the conditions prescribed by the Law. As such, it can be recognized only if there is evidence of death, obtained in accordance with the law. The fact is that members of families of missing persons, out of reverence towards such persons, do not want to initiate a procedure in which a missing person would be declared as deceased, thus preventing the exercising of the right to compensation or pension for the victims of war.

The *Law on the Rights of Civilian Invalids of War*¹⁰ does not exclude the protection of members of families of civilian invalids of war missing under circumstances (Article 2). Namely, a missing civilian is equated with a civilian victim or deceased civilian, but for the purpose of initiating the procedure for exercising the prescribed rights for that person, it is necessary to declare the missing person as deceased in the appropriate procedure regulated by other regulations.

Following the declaration of the missing person as deceased, the procedure for recognizing the rights prescribed by the Special regulations regulate the special protection of all disabled persons. Within this protection, two groups of disabled persons - war veterans and victims of war, who are positively discriminated as opposed to other disabled persons, are especially distinguished.

Differences in protection are based primarily on the principle of objective liability of the State for the damage incurred - disability, i.e. the loss of a family member suffered by military personnel in performing military duties/for military purposes and civilian persons.

The Law on Prevention of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities prescribes special protection for civilians who have suffered physical injuries of 50 percent up to 100 percent of disability due to wounds, injuries or lesions. With this, in terms of recognized special rights (reflected in material benefits), positive discrimination has been made towards this category of victims.

Other victims, i.e. victims who have suffered psychological damage, or physical injuries of less than 50 percent, are provided with other relevant compensation that covers material damage and moral injury. This compensation is contained in other general regulations of the Republic of Serbia, which prescribe the right to compensation of damages, and is based on Article 5, item 5 of the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms.

The law does not impose a limitation on the time period within which protection may be sought for the present case. It is important to, in the process of exercising the rights under the Law in the case which occurred outside the official period of wartime, i.e. military actions, prove the origin of explosive material, i.e. the execution of hostile diversion or terrorist action during the time of peace.

We would like to point out that the Constitution of the Republic of Serbia, as well as the confirmed international treaties, do not explicitly prescribe a circle of relatives of a civilian victim of war who should be included in the protection, nor the conditions under which such relatives can achieve the said protection.

		In drafting the normative solutions, due care was taken to include the relatives between which there is a maintenance obligation. In this way, the Law on the Rights of Civilian Invalids of War provides for the protection of close family and parents of a civilian victim of war. Inclusion of a wider circle of relatives in this type of protection, as well as of relatives who did not live within the same household, would lead to an increase in the number of beneficiaries, which requires a significant increase in the allocation of funds for this purpose. Regarding the allegations from the Recommendation that current regulations do not provide protection for all categories of civilian victims of war, that it doesn't cover all grounds of disability and that it doesn't cover all the territories in which a civilian person was incapacitated, killed or went missing, we would like to point out the following: Pursuant to the principle of state sovereignty and the principle of the territorial validity of the law, the provisions of the previously valid Law on the Protection of Civilian Invalids of War¹¹, as well as the provision of Article 2 of the current law, may apply only to cases where the death or physical injury of a person had occurred exclusively in the territory of the Republic of Serbia. The special protection of civilian invalids of war and members of families of the deceased civilian invalids of war and civilian victims of war in relation to the protection of other disabled civilians and their family members is based on the increased responsibility of the State for the damage suffered by civilians under the circumstances of abuse or deprivation of liberty by the enemy during the wartime, carrying out war operations, from war material left behind or enemy diversionist, i.e. terrorist actions. responsibility of the Republic of Serbia towards civilians who suffered physical injuries under the said circumstances or towards the family members who have been killed, i.e. died under these circumstances outside the territory of the Republic of Serbia does not exist.

Possible prescription of the obligation of the Republic of Serbia to provide a special (extended) protection to these persons would mean that the Republic of Serbia assumes responsibility for physical injuries/bodily harm or deaths of civilians arising under war or other above mentioned circumstances on the territory of other republics of the former SFRY or in any other country in the world. Persons who have, under these circumstances, been killed outside the territory of the Republic of Serbia may, according to our legislation, exercise their rights on a different basis, in accordance with the regulations in the field of protection of persons with disabilities or social protection, which are also recognized for other citizens of the Republic of Serbia.

The allegation that the Law on the Rights of Civilian Invalids of War does not provide the rights to all categories of victims, such as victims of rape, is not acceptable. On the contrary, in accordance with the provisions of the Law on the Rights of Civilian Invalids of War and Victims of Rape, the status of a civilian invalid of war may be recognized if rape has occurred under the circumstances prescribed by the said law and if the victim has visible traces of wounds, injuries or lesions.

In regards to the allegations of the Humanitarian Law Center, that the rights under the Law on the Rights of Civilian Invalids can be exercised only by civilians who have suffered physical injuries/bodily harm or who have suffered from hostile diversion or terrorist actions, i.e. that all victims who were subjected to violence or injury by members of the armed formations that the Republic of Serbia does not consider hostile are excluded from the protection, thereby discriminating against the members of certain national minorities in which they were targeted by members of Serbian forces during the wars of the nineties the last century, we would like to point out the following:

This remark is based on individual extraordinary events that can not be valid for general practice. Such events are subject to sanctions in accordance with the general regulations of the Republic of Serbia on the responsibility of the perpetrators and material compensation for victims.

Concerning the allegations mentioning the social protection of civilian victims of wars, we would like to stress that civilian victims of war, as well as all the other citizens of the Republic of Serbia, can exercise rights in the field of social protection under equal conditions, provided they fulfil the requirements prescribed by law.

Humanitarian Law Center

The Law on Civilian Invalids of War, dating from 1996, is still in force. Pursuant to this law, the right to the assistance and support of the state is denied to the families of missing persons, victims of sexual violence, victims who suffer from the psychological consequences of violence sustained, victims with physical disabilities of less than 50%, and victims who perished on the territory of other former Yugoslav republics, as well as those who perished as a result of the crimes committed by the Serbian armed forces. By explicitly excluding from the circle of potential beneficiaries all victims who suffered violence or were injured by formations that the Republic of Serbia does not consider as an enemy, such as the Yugoslav National Army (YNA), the Yugoslav Army (YA), the Ministry of the Interior (MUP), or the Republic of Srpska Army (RSA) and their subordinate formations, this law prevents thousands of Serbian citizens, especially members of ethnic minorities who were targeted by Serbian forces during the 90's, from obtaining any kind of

Namely, in December 2014, the Ministry of Labour, Employment, Veteran and Social Affairs prepared a Bill on the Rights of War Veterans, Disabled War Veterans, Civilian Victims of War and their Family Members. The Bill was prepared without any consultation with victims' associations or other relevant stakeholders. The Bill itself retains the majority of discriminatory provisions from the existing Law, and it does not improve the protection of civilian victims of war in any sense. The Ministry has refused to provide the public with the text of the Bill, or the composition of the working group which participated in its preparation. The text, which was subject to public debate, is in contrast with the obligations that Serbia undertook with the Action Plan for Chapter 23, which envisages the harmonization of domestic legal provisions with the notion of the victim in international human rights protection agreements. The Republic of Serbia to date has failed to ensure that reparation is available to all victims of enforced disappearance. Also, the Republic of Serbia to date has failed to adopt a definition of "victim" in Serbian legislation, in accordance with the provision of Article 24 of the Convention. rehabilitation, satisfaction and guarantees of non-repetition, without discrimination and without having to declare the disappeared person dead.		and families of enforced disappearance is the Law on Civilian Invalids of War. The rights that the Law provides for civilian victims and their families can be divided into three groups: (1) monetary compensation; (2) healthcare; and (3) reduced prices of public transport tickets. This Law, however, severely neglects these victims and discriminates against them. According to Article 3 of this Law: “A war victim's family member is considered to be a family member of a person who was killed or has died [...]; if the family member has lived in a common household with the aforementioned person, prior to their death.” Since the definition of a family member does not include family members of missing persons, but only those who have died, the only option available for these families is to declare the missing person deceased. Many families refuse to declare their loved ones dead until their mortal remains are found and before the circumstances of their enforced disappearance are determined. Considering the fact that the families of the missing belong to one of the most vulnerable categories of victims and that they live in a state of continuous trauma, their decision not to declare their loved ones deceased should not affect their right to receive help and support from the state. Other By-laws were changed and prior declaration of the person as dead is no longer required.	obtain reparation. of socialist Yugoslavia and is at the same time frozen in the context of social protection. As a result of the shortcomings in the definition of a civilian victim, the largest numbers of victims are not recognised under the existing law. The rights reserved for civilian victims take the form of financial support exclusively, at levels insufficient for today's living conditions. At the same time, there are no other services of social protection of a rehabilitative, psychological, integrative or inclusive nature which have been specifically designed for this category of vulnerable citizens.

Regulations governing the rights of disabled veterans and family members of fallen soldiers and deceased disabled veterans are also applied to civilian invalids of war and family members of civilian victims of war in terms of the scope of the rights and the methods and procedures for their realisation, indicating the subsidiary character (and lesser importance) of categories of civilian victims as compared to soldiers and military personnel. In addition, the regulations aimed at soldiers, disabled veterans and their families are much more detailed and elaborate, and include a somewhat larger scope of social protection, putting them in a privileged position compared to civilians.

In December 2014, the Ministry of Labour, Employment, Veteran and Social Affairs prepared a Bill on the Rights of War Veterans, Disabled War Veterans, Civilian Victims of War and their Family Members. The Bill itself retains the majority of discriminatory provisions from the existing Law and it does not improve the protection of civilian victims of war in any sense. If we take into account the latest available version of the Draft Law from October 2015, published on the website of the State Secretariat for Public Policy, the authors' attempts to improve the position of disabled veterans and their families is notable, as is clear from the introduction of new rights (professional rehabilitation, priority for enrolment in educational institutions, scholarships, grants and

The War Crimes Prosecutor took part in a conference titled “Destruction of Cultural Heritage, Post-War Rebuilding and Building of Trust” held in Pula from 13 to 14 October 2017.

A representative of the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor was a member of the delegation of the Office for Human and Minority Rights of the Serbian Government at the 94th session of the UN Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination held in Geneva in November 2017. On the basis of the concluding observation on the collective periodic reports (2-5) of the Republic of Serbia, the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination emphasized the National Strategy for the Prosecution of War Crimes of 2016 as a positive aspect.

Government: additional information

The Republic of Serbia has shown unequivocal will to determine the responsibility for war crimes, which is manifested through successful cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia, and through proceedings before the domestic authorities.

This is supported by the fact that the Republic of Serbia handed over all the persons the Tribunal asked for. Also, the Republic of Serbia has acted upon all the requests of the Tribunal when it comes to the protection of witnesses who have permanent or temporary residence in a part of the territory of the Republic of Serbia in which the authorities of the Republic of Serbia exercise their competencies.

In order to build public confidence in its work, the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor strives to ensure transparency in its work, which also affects the reduction in the possibility of disinforming the public and the creation of an objective image of the conducted war crimes proceedings.

Cooperation with civil society is enhanced through affirmation of common goals, reaching the truth and justice,

In accordance with item 1.4.5.1. of the Action Plan for Chapter 23, the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor has initiated the holding of round tables and lectures on the topic "Fundamentals of Communication with the Media" for employees of the Protection Unit and Service for Discovering War Crimes. The Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor had received support for the said activities from the team working of the project "Criminal Justice Cooperation: Strengthening Witness Protection in the Fight against Organized Crime, Terrorism and Corruption " (WINPRO III), both in terms of logistics and expertise of international experts in this field.

The National Strategy for the Prosecution of War Crimes (National Strategy) sets “a raised level of awareness and an improved public attitude toward the need for war crimes trials” as one of its priorities. The activities to achieve this goal include presidents of competent courts acting consistently when granting permissions for recording main hearings, improving the website of the Higher Court in Belgrade, regular publication of reports on the work of the institutions responsible for handling war crimes, and on implementation of the strategic documents governing war crimes prosecution, inclusion of representatives of government institutions in the mechanisms for cooperation with civil society organizations, periodical trainings for journalists, and an analysis of teaching/learning materials and publication of the National Strategy. The National Strategy also stipulates that the highest state authorities, led by the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice, will publicly declare their support for the work of all domestic bodies processing war crimes in the fight against impunity and for respect for the rule of law. Also, members of the Government

The OMP also cooperates with associations of families of missing persons, through which it implements a part of its activities and provides them financial assistance and other forms of support. Several meetings have been held with representatives of the associations of families of missing persons in armed conflicts in the territory of the former SFRY and events in the Autonomous Province of Kosovo and Metohija, so that they could obtain information and apply for a public call with their own projects, to secure financing for specific activities.

The OMP treats responsibly any piece of information which indicates the existence of mass graves and without delay, transparently examines all potential mass graves in the central part of the territory of the Republic of Serbia. As ordered by the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor on 9 November 2015, activities have been initiated on the Kiževak mine site, the municipality of Raška, in order to determine the site of possible mass graves reported by the Pristina side. Works on this location have been suspended several times because of bad weather conditions and lack of financial funds. The location has been closed on 20 June 2017 until more precise information is obtained on the exact place of burial. Works on this location have lasted a total of 148 working days; during this period, 130,000m³ of solid mass has been excavated (soil, stone etc.) and about EUR 100,000 from budget funds of the Republic of Serbia and about EUR 162,000 from donor funds have been spent (Embassy of the Swiss Confederation, U.K. Embassy and Embassy of Finland).

As ordered by the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor of the Republic of Serbia, representatives of the War Crime Investigation Service of the Serbian Ministry of Internal Affairs were present at exhumations on four locations to verify information that remains of Kosovo Albanians are located there, including: 1. Kiževak (2015-2017, 4

Signing of the Agreement on continuation of cooperation in the process of exhumations and identifications of persons missing as a result of conflicts in the Autonomous Province of Kosovo and Metohija between the OMP and the International Commission for Missing Persons ensured conditions for identification of remains exhumed on the Rudnica site, the municipality of Raška. So far, remains of 54 persons have been identified on this location. · The efficiency of war crimes trials is ensured inter alia by continuity in the membership of judicial chambers and consistent application of Articles 10 and 10a of the Law on Organization and Competences of Government Authorities in War Crimes Proceedings. Namely, in the Department for War Crimes of the Court of Appeal of Belgrade six judges have been appointed for the period of six years, while cases pursuant to appeals against first-instance decisions of the Department for War Crimes of the Higher Court of Belgrade are adjudicated by a chamber of five judges, which ensures continuity of work, since six judges have been appointed in total. The published annual sitting schedule of judges at the Higher Court of Belgrade in 2018 have consistently implemented the provisions of Articles 10 and 10a of the Law on Organization and Competences of Government Authorities in War Crimes Proceedings. In addition, RSD 35 million was allocated in 2017 for procurements and purchasing and adequate audio and video recording system for courtrooms of the Special Department of the Higher Court of Belgrade.

injured parties must be an integral part of the process of formulating and implementing an investigation plan in each particular case.

In order to improve the position of victims in war crimes proceedings, the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor cooperates with victims' associations. Victims' associations play an important role in the communication between the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor and the injured parties. Participation of prosecutors at gatherings organized by victims' associations provides an opportunity to present the work of the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor and to encourage the victims to testify. On the other hand, direct contact with the victims provides the Prosecutor with the opportunity to find out which doubts and problems do the victims face, i.e. to identify the deficiencies in terms of information, support and protection system of victims and witnesses.

With regard to institutional support to victims and witnesses, the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor implements the relevant by-laws and applies the standards in accordance with Directive 2012/29/EU.

On 3 April 2017, the Information and Support Service for Victims and Witnesses (SIP) was established within the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor, in accordance with the general mandatory instruction of the Republic Public Prosecutor.

In order to provide timely information to interested parties and organizations, a notice on the establishment and operation of SIP, its members with contact information, information for witnesses and injured parties, as well as the brochure of the Republic Public Prosecutor's Office, are published on the official website of the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor.

Support to Victims and Witnesses at the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor, as of February 2018, is also available on the interactive map of services and institutions for providing assistance and support to victims of crimes in Serbia. Based on the results of the research of the Organization Victim Support Europe and the Victimology Society of Serbia, an interactive map was created that represents the address book of organizations, services and institutions that provide assistance and support to victims of crime in the Republic of Serbia.

Employees at the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor who continuously maintain contact with the victims attend general and specialist training in order to be able to deal with the victims in an impartial, considerate and expert manner. The trainings are conducted in accordance with Article 25 of the Directive 2012/29/EU and measure 3.7.1.19. from the Action Plan for Negotiation Chapter 23: Judiciary and Fundamental Rights, in the process of accession of the Republic of Serbia to the European Union.

According to rough estimates, there are about 20,000 people living in Serbia who, as civilians, were either direct victims of war-related violence or lost an immediate family member who did not take part in hostilities. While it is not possible to estimate with accuracy the number of victims from other countries who are entitled to claim reparations from Serbia, it definitely exceeds 20,000.

Victims who wish to claim reparation may do so either through judicial proceedings against the Republic of Serbia or under the Law on the Rights of Civilian Invalids of War. The Criminal Procedure Code provides for a third mechanism, which is available to injured parties in criminal proceedings – restitution claims – but this mechanism is not used in practice at all.

In practice, however, their effectiveness is substantially weakened because of discretionary interpretations of some of its provisions by the relevant public authorities and the absence of an efficient mechanism for the enforcement of its provisions. Over the last few years, the Ministry of Defence (MoD) and the Ministry of the Interior (MoI) have been unlawfully obstructing access to information of public importance essential for shedding light on past events, including the facts relating to crimes and enforced disappearances. As a rule, these two institutions deny access to the information and documents requested by the HLC, especially where the documents concern crimes regarding which there are strong indications that they were committed by police or army officers. In their attempt to keep these documents out of public view, the MoI and MoD use a variety of arguments and procedures which often run contrary to the relevant laws. The MoI has refused most of the HLC's requests, using the unpersuasive rationale that it does not hold the information requested. The MoD, for its part, refuses the requests by invoking data secrecy or personal data provisions. This MoD practice is based upon its arbitrary interpretations of the relevant provisions, and involves non-compliance with the decisions of the Commissioner for Information of Public Importance and Personal Data Protection ordering the MoD to disclose documents and information of public importance. The HLC believes that changes in the legislative framework alone would not facilitate the exercise of the right to the truth and contribute to reducing impunity. The current practice of the relevant institutions, and the absence of procedures for checking the wartime backgrounds of their personnel, bear this out. According to the International Commission on Missing Persons (ICMP), there are approximately 450 mortal remains buried in city cemeteries in Serbia. We would like to point out that the data has been stated in the context of erroneous identifications and exhumations of unidentified mortal remains found in the morgues in the region.

The Commission on Missing Persons of the Government of the Republic of Serbia draws the attention to the fact that bone samples of all 450 N.N. buried bodies in city cemeteries in Serbia (these are mortal remains that have drifted down the river flows from the war affected areas of the Republic of Croatia and BiH to the territory of the Republic of Serbia) have been taken for DNA analysis and that DNA profiles were extracted from them. Also, out of the total number of 450 bodies, 256 bodies have been identified and handed over to interested parties or families in the Republic of Serbia through this process, with the support of ICMP, up to now.

At the moment, there are mortal remains of 196 N.N. persons in city cemeteries in the Republic of Serbia, and this number should be indicated in the table of the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances.

This is a very sensitive question, that requires regional cooperation and a joint procedure and strategy involving a sensitive approach to a victim's families by all the sides involved in a process.

a DNA-led process in 2001 is a major regional impediment to identifying missing persons. There are more than 3,000 NN cases stored in mortuaries in BIH; around 900 in Croatia, 400 in Kosovo, and approximately 450 NN cases buried in municipal plots in Serbia. ICMP has obtained DNA profiles from the NN cases in BIH and Kosovo; however, these do not match any of the thousands of sets of genetic references collected from families who are still searching for their missing relatives. Croatia reports that it has made efforts to identify its NN cases, but without success. The unresolved status of NN cases contributes to suspicions between states, and this exacerbates tensions in the region and undermines regional cooperation to address the very issue of missing persons from the conflicts in the former Yugoslavia.

Where identifications are carried out using traditional methods, misidentifications may take place, despite the authorities' best efforts. It is especially difficult to achieve accurate results by traditional methods when applied to large numbers of mortal remains recovered long after death in complex commingled sites.

Misidentifications have a compound effect on efforts to account for all the missing. When a body is misidentified, the family that has incorrectly received the body in many instances will not have provided family DNA reference samples. Therefore, the actual mortal remains of their family member, if located, will remain unidentified. And the family whose missing relative's remains were misidentified and released incorrectly to another family will not resolve their case even if they have provided DNA reference samples since their relative is buried under someone else's name.

A higher proportion of misidentifications may contribute to an increased number of unidentified mortal remains in mortuaries.

See paragraphs 42 and 43, 46, and 47 of the report.	Serbian commission for missing persons has been advocating the tackling of the issue of past misidentifications at regional level. Namely, in the Department for War Crimes of the Court of Appeal of Belgrade six judges have been appointed for the period of six years, while cases pursuant to appeals against first-instance decisions of the Department for War Crimes of the Higher Court of Belgrade are adjudicated by a chamber of five judges, which ensures continuity of work, since six judges have been appointed in total. In view of the foregoing, taking into account the number of appointed judges and their term in office, normal functioning of the Department for War Crimes of the Court of Appeal of Belgrade as the second-instance court in war crime cases has been ensured. The published annual sitting schedule of judges at the Higher Court of Belgrade in 2018 have consistently implemented the provisions of Articles 10 and 10a of the Law on Organization and Competences of Government Authorities in War Crimes Proceedings. It notes, however, that war crimes proceedings continue to be rather slow with few convictions and shares the recommendations formulated by the Committee on enforced disappearances to the Serbian Government in 2015 to ensure that all cases of enforced disappearance that may have been committed by agents of the State or by persons or groups of persons acting with their authorization, support or acquiescence in the context of past armed conflicts are investigated thoroughly and impartially without delay (see CED/C/SRB/CO/1, para. 14). aimed at increasing the efficiency of war crimes prosecution.

In accordance with the prerequisites and principles foreseen by the Action Plan for the Negotiation Chapter 23, a draft text of the Prosecutorial Strategy for the Investigation and Prosecution of War Crimes in the Republic of Serbia 2018-2023 was drafted.

This document defines specific measures and activities that need to be undertaken in order to increase the efficiency and quality of the work of the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor, with principal bodies for these activities and persons responsible for overseeing their implementation being designated.

The Draft document was presented at an expert meeting held on 12 March 2018. The work of the expert meeting was attended by judges, prosecutors, lawyers, and officials of: the Service for Discovering War Crimes, the Protection Unit, the Military Security Agency, the Security Information Agency, the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of European Integration, the Commission on Missing Persons, the Office for Human and Minority Rights, the Judicial Academy, the OSCE Mission to Serbia, the Humanitarian Law Center and the Belgrade Centre for Human Rights.

Submitted suggestions made after the meeting have been, along with the Opinion and Suggestions of the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals, taken into account when defining the final text of the document, which has been adopted at the board of the Office of the War Crimes Prosecutor on 4 April 2018.

In terms of strengthening the administrative and technical capacities, the National Assembly has elected a new War Crimes Prosecutor on 15 May 2017, who took office on 31 May 2017. One Deputy War Crimes Prosecutor has been elected by the National Assembly on 22 March 2018. The State Prosecutorial Council has announced the appointment

It is certain that they have had a negative impact on efforts to establish the rule of law and end the culture of impunity for those responsible for the grave crimes committed in the 1990s. It was found that the courts also contributed to delays during the reporting period, mainly owing to the absence of witnesses or alleged health problems of the accused. There have been only 95 trial days for all war crimes cases since the adoption of the National Strategy, with 70 trial days having been postponed for all sorts of reasons. Hearings are scheduled with, on average, more than 40 days between them. As there have been 25 ongoing cases, the average number of trial days held per case has been just three. The most striking example of excessively and unjustifiably long proceedings is the Ovčara Case, in which, four years after the final judgment was rendered, and 10 years after the indictment was issued, the judgment has been quashed and the case remanded to the War Crimes Department of the Court of Appeal for reconsideration on appeal. The case was finally closed at the end of 2017, 14 years after the first indictment.

Improve and systematize vetting measures in the recruitment and appointment of State officials.	See paragraphs 44 and 45 of the report.	In September 2017, the HLC objected on behalf of the victims to the excessive length of proceedings in the Trnje Case, requesting that the process be expedited. The indictment in this case was issued in November 2013, with only nine out of 21 scheduled main hearings having been held before the objection was filed. Other New prosecutor appointed, new prosecutorial strategy adopted; however without clear reference to prioritising cases; capacity is an issues as appointments of new deputies are delayed. Government As regards improvement and systematization of vetting measures in recruitment and appointment of State officials, the Bylaw on Internal Job Announcements for Employees of the Ministry of Interior (Official Gazette of RS No. 73/2016) is applied, which provides for the selection procedure, the work of competition committees, the manner of evaluation and ranking of candidates, as well as the Bylaw on Competences for Employees in the Ministry of Internal Affairs (Official Gazette of RS No. 52/2016), passed on the basis of the Law on Police (Official Gazette of RS No. 6/16). Such selection procedure ensures avoiding of recruitment in the Service of those candidates who were in any manner whatsoever in contact with persons, units and/or locations linked to commitment of war crimes in the territory of former Yugoslavia, as well as candidates who do not comply with the criteria for education, relevant work experience necessary for these jobs and required knowledge and skills. Humanitarian Law Center The second report on implementation of the Action Plan for Chapter 23 in 2017 states that rules preventing hiring ex-combatants at the WCIS have been adopted. Namely, the rulebooks' provisions prescribe how vacancies are to be announced internally, the application process, the selection process, verification and evaluation of candidates etc., but do not envisage mandatory checks into candidates' wartime backgrounds. The rulebooks should contain a provision expressly forbidding the hiring of participants in war operations and establish the procedure by which to achieve this goal. Other It is not the case in Serbia. VI. Kosovo

55. On 15 December 2017, the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances requested the Kosovo authorities, through UNMIK, to provide information on measures taken to implement the recommendations that were made in the report A/HRC/30/38/Add.1 (paras. 86-97, 119-136, 144 and 146), after its visit in June 2014. On 20 July 2018, the Working Group sent the below table for comments to the Kosovo authorities, through UNMIK. The Working Group inquired with UNMIK whether any feedback was received from the Kosovo authorities on 13 March 2018, 10 April 2018, 26 June 2018 and 17 August 2018. No information was provided by the Kosovo authorities.

56. The Working Group regrets that the Kosovo authorities have not cooperated throughout the process of the follow-up report. It appreciates the replies received from UNMIK and EULEX.

Recommendations to authorities in Kosovo

The Working Group:

57. Notes the creation of the Analysis Team (AT), established in September 2016, to exchange and analyse available information among the Pristina and Belgrade delegations, EULEX, and the ICRC and hopes that it will help addressing the lack of new information.

58. Notes that some efforts were displayed in the context of the activities of the Working Group on Missing Persons (WG), which took the initiative to establish an Analysis Team (AT) to analyse all available information on specific cases or sites, with exclusive aim of solving more missing persons' cases.

59. Appreciates the information that the authorities have established two informal working groups in an attempt to unlock the issue of missing persons. It regrets though that access to archives and disclosure of relevant information on cases of enforced disappearance remain problematic.

60. Regrets that over the past two years the process of exchange of information with a view to clarifying the fate of the missing persons has practically stopped. It reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit to immediately open archives relevant to cases of enforced disappearances that took place during and immediately after the 1998-1999 events in Kosovo, in order to facilitate the localization of undiscovered gravesites and to speed up the search.

61. Appreciates that the Governmental Commission on Missing Persons has two representatives of family associations regularly attending its meetings.

62. Appreciates that local authorities are displaying efforts in addressing the issue of missing persons and have developed a workplan in this regard. However, the results are limited due to lack of coordination among the concerned entities and scarce political will.

63. Reiterates the recommendation formulated at the end of its visit to establish an agreement on war crime cases with the Serbian authorities in order to establish an operational protocol on cooperation in the investigation and prosecution of war crimes. It regrets that cooperation with the Serbian authorities on war crimes cases is currently non-existent.

64. Reiterates the recommendation formulated at the end of its visit to conclude cooperation agreements with other international mechanisms involved in the investigation and prosecution of war crimes in order to facilitate technical cooperation, such as acquiring evidence, statements and documents related to the conflict in Kosovo.

65. Reiterates the recommendation formulated at the end of its visit to seek technical assistance from international bodies operating on the ground to conduct institutional reforms aimed at establishing an independent and efficient judicial system.

66. Reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit to adopt a law on the use in Kosovo of evidence collected by the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia in order to ensure that evidence gathered by the Tribunal will continue to be admissible after the transfer of the mandate to local courts and prosecutors, respecting confidentiality rules.
67. Reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit to put in place a strong vetting process to ensure that alleged perpetrators are not appointed to positions of authority.
68. Notes that Kosovo authorities with the help of the EU have developed a witness protection programme in line with EU and international standards. The WGEID would appreciate receiving more information on the program and its implementation.
69. Notes that the authorities established a Task Force to amend the legal framework on missing persons, including to bring about adequate and effective reparation for victims. However, it also notes that non-Albanian victims encounter more difficulties to effectively benefit from redress.
70. Regrets the information that there was no progress in relation to the adoption of a gender-sensitive approach when designing and implementing reparation programmes, and reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit.
71. Notes that a joint commemoration among victims of different ethnic background was organized in 2017 on the occasion of the International Day of the Disappeared, though it was a civil society rather than institutional activity.
72. Appreciates the appointment of the Deputy Head of the “Government Commission on Missing Persons” belonging to non-majority community.
73. Notes that there is no systematic approach to inform the general public about the issue of missing persons and coverage of the topic appears to be unsatisfactory. It reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit to develop educational materials that promote pluralism, and teach history objectively in order to combat ethnic polarization and ethnic discrimination.

Recommendations to international bodies

The Working Group:

74. Welcomes the efforts by the international bodies to address this issue but notes the lack of results with respect to the recommendation formulated after the visit to all international bodies that hold relevant information regarding cases of enforced disappearances that took place during and immediately after the 1998-1999 events in Kosovo to open their archives and facilitate the search and investigation.
75. Appreciates UNMIK’s engagement through the organization of a two-day conference on 29 and 30 June 2017 in Geneva on Missing Persons as a result of the events in Kosovo in 1998/1999, with the participation of authorities as well as families of missing persons from all communities, among others. The WGEID would appreciate receiving more information on the implementation of the commitments and engagements agreed by all participants during the event.
76. Welcomes UNMIK’s support to the establishment in March 2017 of a Multi Ethnic Missing Persons Resource Centre (MPRC) in Pristina, bringing families of all communities together. The WGEID reiterates its recommendation that the Working Group on Missing Persons should meet more frequently and that more work should be done in-between the Working Group’s meetings.
77. Welcomes the fact that the ICRC will continue chairing the Working Group on Missing Persons and that it recently launched a 5 years Road Map with the aim to, inter alia, increase human and financial resources for the research on the archives of international institutions such as the Mechanism for International Criminal Tribunals (MICT) with the main objective to find more information on the fate and whereabouts of missing persons.

78. Appreciates the initiative to establish a Trust Fund for the implementation of assistance projects, primarily in North Mitrovica, South Mitrovica and Leposavic, which will benefit the Roma, Ashkali and Egyptian communities, but reiterates the need for a general scheme to provide compensation for the victims of human rights abuses as identified by the Human Rights Advisory Panel.

79. Notes the efforts displayed by EULEX over the past 10 years to investigate and prosecute several war crimes cases. However, given the reported lack of political will for cooperation from both Serbia and Kosovo on requests for mutual legal assistance, the WGEID is concerned at the fact that, following changes to the EULEX mandate and as reflected also in Kosovo legislation, in 2014 the Mission started handing over criminal cases, including cases connected to the conflict, to Kosovo institutions.

80. Is concerned that the work of EULEX prosecutors continued to be hampered by the fact that witnesses are often reluctant to stand by their own statements given in the investigative stage, which emphasizes again the need for an effective and properly functioning witness protection program.

81. Appreciates that since the establishment of a dedicated war crimes department within the Kosovo Special Prosecution Office (SPRK) in August 2015, EULEX has continued to provide training to build the capacity of local counterparts including on war crimes and international criminal law.

Follow up to the recommendations made by the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances, ICMP was done in 11 Oct 2017. And Kosovo is part of the Regional List of Missing Persons which is administered by ICMP.

90. Speed up the process of tracing missing persons through strengthened cooperation with institutions engaged in tracing disappeared persons in neighbouring countries, especially between prosecutors and judicial institutions. Such cooperation must include the exchange of relevant evidence.	See paragraph 8, 12 and 25 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center Unfortunately, this process has stagnated during last two years	See previous observation related to recommendation 87.
91. Everyone involved must support the search for missing persons by providing relevant information and documentation at the national and regional level.	See paragraphs 10 and 12 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center The job has not been done Other In effort of upscaling initiatives in addressing the issue of lack of new information, and the need to analyze the already available data, the Analysis Team (AT) was established in September 2016, to exchange and analyze available information among the Pristina and Belgrade delegations, EULEX, and the ICRC. The AT was endorsed by the WG and is functioning in the frame of Sub-Working Group on Forensic Issues.	The WGEID notes the creation of the Analysis Team (AT), established in September 2016, to exchange and analyse available information among the Pristina and Belgrade delegations, EULEX, and the ICRC and hopes that it will help addressing the lack of new information.
92. Continue the regional dialogue on missing persons and initiatives aimed at finding solutions to properly solve the issue.	See paragraphs 15, 16 and 38 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center Very rare meetings and no feedback on the meetings. Neither WG nor other relevant actors, even though we as a MPRC request feedback about any event.	See previous observation related to recommendation 87.

ICMP encourages Kosovo to also join the ICMP Declaration.	The WGEID notes that more efforts should be made to fully implement the “Declaration on the Role of the State in Addressing the Issue of Persons Missing as a Consequence of Armed Conflict and Human Rights Abuses”, notably when it comes to its article 7 related to the prosecution of war crimes.

Conduct effective negotiations and reach an agreement on war crime cases with the Serbian authorities in order to establish an operational protocol on cooperation in the investigation and prosecution of war crimes.	See paragraph 52 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center A lot has been said about this but nothing has been done	The WGEID reiterates this recommendation and regrets that cooperation with the Serbian authorities on war crimes cases is currently non-existent.
122. Conclude cooperation agreements with other international mechanisms involved in the investigation and prosecution of war crimes in order to facilitate technical cooperation, such as acquiring evidence, statements and documents related to the war in Kosovo.	See paragraphs 70, 74, 76 and 77 of the report.		The WGEID reiterates the recommendation made during the visit.
123. Hold consultations with associations of families of missing persons, civil society organizations and other relevant stakeholders on the establishment of a central register on missing persons to ensure that the register contains all the information necessary to facilitate the clarification of the fate and whereabouts of missing persons in a transparent, inclusive and consultative manner.	See paragraph 62 of the report.	Other The authorities still need to adopt secondary legislation on the establishment of a central register, and on the closure of cases, to support implementation of the Law on Missing Persons. The new Government has taken a more active role in clarifying the fate and whereabouts of those still missing from the '99 conflict. In an attempt to unlock the issue of Missing Persons (MP), PM Haradinaj has established two informal working/meeting groups: a) technical working group; and b) wider working	The WGEID appreciates the information according to which the authorities have established two informal working groups in an attempt to unlock the issue of missing persons.

128. Immediately open archives relevant to cases of enforced disappearances that took place during and immediately after the 1998-1999 events in Kosovo, in order to facilitate the localization of undiscovered gravesites and to speed up the search.	See paragraphs 62 and 63 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center Not even one has been opened. Other Over the past 2 years the process of exchange of information with a view to clarifying the fate of the remaining missing persons has practically ground to a halt. The reasons are both political and operational and need to be overcome as soon as possible to unlock the process.	See recommendation related to paragraph 96.
129. Provide the families of missing persons with adequate and effective reparation. Consultations with victims from all ethnic groups should be held to hear their views on the specific nature of the reparation that they need. Language support should be provided	See paragraphs 78 and 80 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center The law on Missing Persons does not meet the needs of families of missing persons nor recommendations of this report. MPRC is the only organization which gathers families of missing persons of all ethnic background and consults them about their concerns related the law on MP and other issues they face.	The WGEID notes that the authorities established a Task Force to amend the legal framework on missing persons, including to bring about adequate and effective reparation for victims. However, it also notes that non-Albanian upon request in the whole process.		Language support is always provided during the meetings organized by MPRC. Other The Government has established a Task Force to amend the legal framework on missing persons. Some of the areas pertaining the benefits of the family of missing persons that the task force is looking at amending, include: narrowing the gap between the benefits that the law provides to families of missing of former KLA and families of missing civilians; enabling relatives of missing persons to enjoy pensions of missing persons and pensions guaranteed in the pensions scheme; establishing a public fund to support family associations. However, recurring attempts by some politicians to amend the timeframe covered by the Law on Missing Persons, effectively excluding many non-Albanian victims, needs to be carefully monitored.	victims encounter more difficulties to effectively benefit from redress.

130. Ensure that all victims of enforced disappearance obtain full reparation, including restitution, rehabilitation, satisfaction and guarantees of non-repetition, without discrimination and without having to declare the disappeared person dead.	See paragraphs 78, 79 and 80 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center Partially done since there are a lot of shortcomings in the law on Missing Persons even though the families are constantly insisting for the law to be amended. Other Family associations coming from minority communities have complained of administrative challenges when applying for their benefits in various municipalities i.e. language/communication barriers; forms/documents available only in Albanian etc.	See previous observation.

See paragraph 75 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center Our institutions do not have such programme. Other	The WGEID notes that Kosovo authorities with the help of the EU have developed a witness protection programme in line with EU and

132. Adopt a gender-sensitive approach when designing and implementing reparation programmes, in order to address gender inequality. Relocation assistance should be provided in cases where the victims live in the same community as the alleged perpetrators in order to facilitate the victims' rehabilitation and prevent them from being re-traumatized.	See paragraphs 75, 79 and 81 of the report.	Kosovar authorities with help of EU assistance have developed a witness protection programme in line with EU and international standards (Regional EU IPA Funding WINPRO 1, 2, 3). Missing Persons Resource Center Not even taken into consideration	international standards. The WGEID would appreciate receiving more information on the program and its implementation. The WGEID regrets the information that there was no progress in relation to this issue and reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit
133. Address the possible misidentifications made in the past, provided that the right to privacy of the families of victims of enforced disappearances are fully respected and that the DNA data is protected with the utmost care. A review process should be initiated to remove the obstacles to the ongoing identification work.	See paragraph 64 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center MPRC has opened a discussion on this topic and has given its recommendations but no decisions have been taken yet. ICMP The interrelated issue of NN (no name) cases and misidentifications dating from before ICMP's introduction of a DNA-led process in 2001 is a major regional impediment to identifying missing persons. There are more than 3,000 NN cases stored in mortuaries in BIH; around 900 in Croatia, 400 in Kosovo, and approximately 450 NN cases buried in municipal plots in Serbia. ICMP has obtained DNA profiles from the NN cases in BIH and Kosovo; however, these do not match any of the thousands of sets of genetic references collected from families who are still searching for their missing relatives. Croatia reports that it has made efforts to identify its NN	The WGEID notes that the authorities are in the process of compiling the list of cases of those who have been identified with traditional methods, as well as of families who refused to give blood/blood samples necessary for comparison with NN mortal remains. It also notes that this is an issue that needs to be tackled at the regional level.

Recommendations (A/HRC/30/38/Add.1)	Situation during the visit (A/HRC/30/38/Add.1)	Observations: measures taken/current situation	Level of implementation and observations (to be completed by the WGEID) cases, but without success. The unresolved status of NN cases contributes to suspicions between states, and this exacerbates tensions in the region and undermines regional cooperation to address the very issue of missing persons from the conflicts in the former Yugoslavia.

Where identifications are carried out using traditional methods, misidentifications may take place, despite the authorities' best efforts. It is especially difficult to achieve accurate results by traditional methods when applied to large numbers of mortal remains recovered long after death in complex commingled sites.

Misidentifications have a compound effect on efforts to account for all the missing. When a body is misidentified, the family that has incorrectly received the body in many instances will not have provided family DNA reference samples. Therefore, the actual mortal remains of their family member, if located, will remain unidentified. And the family whose missing relative's remains were misidentified and released incorrectly to another family will not resolve their case even if they have provided DNA reference samples since their relative is buried under someone else's name.

A higher proportion of misidentifications may contribute to an increased number of unidentified mortal remains in mortuaries.

Other

The issue of misidentification before DNA testing was introduced as the primary means of human identification, remains a challenge that must be addressed. The collection of additional genetic reference samples from family members who identified their missing through traditional means

Ensure media freedom and use the mass media to raise awareness of the issue of missing persons in the region.		without the assistance of DNA, may make it possible to resolve a substantial number of cases of unidentified human remains in Pristina Mortuary. The Government is in the process of compiling the list of cases or families who have been buried with traditional means, as well as refused to give blood/blood samples necessary for comparison with NN mortal remains. The authorities, in close cooperation with relevant international stakeholders should develop a plan must on how to resolve these cases that would necessarily involve addressing the issue of potential misidentifications based on traditional methods. Missing Persons Resource Center Media coverage of this topic is not satisfactory even though the families of Missing Persons request more engagement to be done. Other To be considered from the Task force responsible to amend the legislation on Missing Persons.	The WGEID notes that there is no systematic approach to inform the general public about the issue of missing persons and coverage of the topic appears to be unsatisfactory.

See paragraph 77 of the report.	Missing Persons Resource Center We are not informed about the existence of such verification process.	The WGEID reiterates the recommendation formulated after the visit.
D. Recommendations to international bodies 137. UNMIK and EULEX should engage with international human rights mechanisms with the aim of addressing issues related to enforced disappearance. International bodies acting as transitional administrators in Kosovo should be held accountable for human rights violations.	See paragraphs 69, 70, 71 and 72 of the report.	UNMIK UNMIK took active steps to engage with the UNWGEID. UNMIK organized a two-day conference on 29 and 30 June 2017 in Geneva on Missing Persons as a result of the events in Kosovo in 1998/1999 on which relevant entities from Serbia and Kosovo involved in the subject matter, including families of Missing Persons from all communities, were provided with the opportunity to gather and discuss the way forward towards the achievement of the common objective to clarify the fate and whereabouts of missing persons, while benefitting from the presence of the UN Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances and the UN Committee of Missing Persons from Cyprus. The rationale behind this initiative was to build on the recommendations included in the public report of the UN Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances (UNWGEID), which was presented at the Human Rights Council in September 2015, explore how the current mechanism could be strengthened, and create an opportunity for the participants to articulate their priorities and the requirements related to the implementation of their respective mandates. This initiative resulted in concrete engagements among the participants on the next steps and the way	The WGEID appreciates UNMIK engagement through the organization of a two-day conference on 29 and 30 June 2017 in Geneva on Missing Persons as a result of the events in Kosovo in 1998/1999, with the participation of authorities as well as families of missing persons from all communities, among others. The WGEID would appreciate receiving more information on the implementation of the commitments and engagements agreed by all participants during the event.

All international bodies that hold relevant information regarding cases of enforced disappearances that took place during and immediately after the 1998-1999 events in Kosovo should open their archives and facilitate the search and investigation. the moment of the hand-over, out of these 5,000 cases, around 2,000 had been marked by UNMIK as ‘active’ while 3,000 had been marked as ‘closed’, because the remains of the disappeared had in the meantime been found and identified. A number of these cases may present the features of enforced disappearances.

Following changes to the EULEX mandate and as reflected also in Kosovo legislation, in 2014 the Mission started handing over criminal cases, including cases connected to the conflict, to Kosovo institutions. In accordance with Kosovo laws, EULEX will transfer all criminal cases and files to local institutions by the end of the current mandate. EULEX is committed to ensuring an orderly transfer of the case files and over the past year, staff in the War Crimes Investigation Unit has been working extensively on the preparation of paper and electronic files (including databases) for the hand-over (see also below under point 143). It will be up to Kosovo institutions to ensure that information and evidence from the case files is used effectively to continue the search of the missing and the investigation of war crimes and other crimes related to the conflict.

In view of the transfer of cases, EULEX is currently supporting Kosovo institutions in drafting a National War Crimes Strategy.

The MPRC is a unique initiative that brings together families of missing persons from all communities. The center encourages cooperation among the families of victims and aims at fostering strong joint advocacies towards Belgrade and Pristina in the area of solving the fate of missing persons in Kosovo. In this regards, the MPRC serves two purposes: promoting reconciliation between communities and amplifying the voice of victims whose relatives remain missing 18 years after the events in Kosovo. Additionally, the activities of the centers include regular coordination meetings with the families of missing persons and Governmental bodies from Serbia and Kosovo; the establishment of an information platform, including publications on missing persons, translated documents and legislation Moreover UNMIK has taken steps to bring a Ground Penetrating Radar at the disposal of the Working Group, which should help to advance the search of body remains. Missing Persons Resource Center Working Groups should meet more frequently. 143. Acknowledging the challenging nature of the work of war crimes investigation and prosecution and the efforts made, EULEX must investigate all outstanding cases of enforced disappearances and bring the perpetrators to justice.	See paragraphs 70, 71, 72, 73 and 74 of the report.	EULEX EULEX was established in 2008 to assist the Kosovo institutions, judicial authorities and law enforcement agencies in their progress towards sustainability and accountability and in further developing and strengthening and independent multi-ethnic justice system and multi-ethnic police and customs service (Council Joint Action 2008/124/CFSP 2008). Its current mandate expires on 15 June 2018. Following changes to the Mission’s mandate which were also reflected in Kosovo legislation, starting from April 2014 EULEX prosecutors and judges retained competence only in relation to ‘ongoing cases’, except in ‘extraordinary circumstances’.¹² Considering its limited operational time-frame, the resources available and the fact that the investigation, prosecution and adjudication of war crimes was only one of its priorities, over the past 10 years the Mission did its best to investigate crimes related to the conflict and bring perpetrators to justice. EULEX has been actively engaged in addressing the issue of missing persons through several units: the EULEX War Crimes Investigation Unit (WCIU), the EULEX Special Prosecution Office (EULEX SPRK), the EULEX personnel supporting the Institute of Forensic Medicine (IFM), and, between 2011 and	The WGEID notes the efforts displayed by EULEX over the past 10 years to investigate and prosecute several war crimes cases. However, given the reported lack of political will for cooperation from both Serbia and Kosovo on requests for mutual legal assistance, the WGEID is concerned at the fact that, following changes to the EULEX mandate and as reflected also in Kosovo legislation, in 2014 the Mission started handing over criminal cases, including cases connected to the conflict, to Kosovo institutions.

		2016, the SITF (Special Investigative Task Force), which is now part of the Kosovo Specialist Prosecutor's Office based in the Hague. Over the past 10 years, EULEX investigated, filed indictments and adjudicated several war crimes cases. Priority cases for investigation were selected based on the gravity of the crime, the availability of witness testimonies and other evidence, as well as the resources available. In many cases, investigations could not move forward due to the fact that the suspects are not in Kosovo and cannot be tried in absentia. The lack of political will for cooperation from both Serbian and Kosovo on requests for mutual legal assistance also continued to affect negatively the ongoing investigations. Over the past year, the WCIU has intensified its efforts to re-assess and systematise the 'missing person' case-files in preparation for the hand-over to Kosovo institutions. The ongoing analysis of these cases by EULEX has revealed that many among the 5,000 cases received from UNMIK, should have been reported to the prosecutors at least at the moment when remains were found and the cause of death established. Also, many of these cases were registered by UNMIK as 'missing persons' despite the fact that the relevant files included information on the identity of suspects. Efforts to rectify this problem were already initiated during the early years of EULEX operations, but later they had to be put on hold when the research and analysis team of the WCIU, was cut as part of the 2013-2014 Mission's reconfiguration. Data from the IFM files is currently being integrated in the EULEX database, so that all the information available on missing persons will be easily accessible and searchable by relevant Kosovo institutions after the transfer of the cases by EULEX.

Over the past year, the WCIU together with EULEX SPRK has also been actively engaged in identifying injured parties in cases of missing persons with a view to notifying rulings on dismissal of the criminal reports, in line with the provisions of the Kosovo criminal procedure code.

Prosecutors in the EULEX SPRK continued to cooperate with Serbian prosecutors over war crimes. Regrettably, since the issuance of the 2015 WGEID report, the work of EULEX prosecutors continued to be hampered, as witnesses are often reluctant to stand by their own statements given in the investigative stage.

Since 2015, legislation to establish the Institute of Forensic Medicine as an independent agency was adopted by the Kosovo Government; however the adoption of relevant by-laws is still pending. A joint effort with local counterparts was made by EULEX to reduce the autopsy backlog through a clear identification and prioritisation of cases. However, problems persist due to the lack of a functional case management system, which translates in no effective control of cases and lack of reliable statistics. Nonetheless, thanks to the work of the EULEX personnel supporting the IFM, the backlog of clinical examinations reports and unfinished autopsies was significantly reduced, with a significant impact on the progress of investigations in missing person cases.

In recent years, EULEX staff continued to carry out site assessments, exhumations, re-associations of remains and identifications.

In September 2016, a working group led by Kosovo

In this context EULEX has also strongly advocated for the drafting of a strategy on the issue of missing persons, but so far without success. Given the difficult relations between the Kosovo Government Commission on Missing Persons and the Serbian counterpart, EULEX continued to act as intermediary. Indeed, in light of the fact that Serbia does not recognize Kosovo Institutions, Serbian authorities have been handing over remains of conflict victims only to EULEX and not to their local counterparts, namely the Governmental Commission on Missing Persons in Kosovo. Missing Persons Resource Center Not completed. Very little has been done EULEX Since 2015, the EULEX Witness Security Department continued to support temporary and permanent relocation of protected persons according to the requests of EULEX prosecutors, and to secure environments in order for interviews with witnesses to be carried out. The EULEX department continues to liaise with the KP witness protection directorate who declared themselves operationally capable to support the Kosovo criminal justice system which constitutes a positive step toward future local empowerment. The EULEX department will provide both support and guidance if requested.	The WGEID is concerned that the work of EULEX prosecutors continued to be hampered by the fact that witnesses are often reluctant to stand by their own statements given in the investigative stage, which emphasizes again the need for an effective and properly functioning witness protection program.
